

8,000,000 Nazi Officers And Men Put Out of War, Stalin Asserts in Speech

Russian Premier Says Day Is Not Far Off When Enemy Will Feel Force of New Blows

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
MOSCOW, Saturday, Nov. 7 (AP)—Premier Stalin told his people today that the Soviet army "has put out of action more than 8,000,000 enemy officers and men," and declared "the day is not far off when the enemy will feel the force of new blows of the Red army."

This hint of an imminent Russian counter-offensive against the Nazis followed the premier's statement yesterday that the Allies would open "a second front" against Germany in Europe "sooner or later."

The suggested new war developments were made in the order of the day commemorating the twenty-fifth anniversary of Soviet revolution, and he told the Russians that the fighting on the Russian front "is becoming more and more tense."

However, he said the Germans were "considerably weaker" than last year, and their forces "have been blunted and stretched to the limit."

"The Red army," he declared in the order of the day, "is carrying the full weight" of the war against the Axis, "and by its self-sacrificing struggle it has won the love and respect of all freedom-loving peoples of the world."

In his speech yesterday Stalin spoke only to Moscow members of the Communist party and other special organizations in a secret meeting place.

The Germans, he said, had been able to use 240 divisions—over 3,000,000 men—"because of the absence of a second front and thus were able to penetrate 300 miles deeper into Russia."

He expressed confidence that the Allies "sooner or later" would invade Western Europe for their own good. He reviewed developments of relations between Russia, the United States and Britain in a friendly tone in the speech that highlighted the eve of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Communist revolution.

British Complete Their Occupation Of Madagascar

Now Hold Vital Link in Grand Strategy of the Allies

LONDON, Nov. 6 (AP)—British occupation of Madagascar, begun last May and resumed in September to thwart its use as a U-boat base for Indian ocean raids, was completed today as an obscure but vital link in the Allied high strategy for mastery of Africa and the seas.

Even as the final surrender of the island's Vichy French was accepted on their petition for an armistice, Japanese sources in Ankara disclosed that Hitler, in desperation over his crumbling position in North Africa, had appealed to the Japanese to make a naval attack on Madagascar or South Africa as an Axis diversion.

No Help from Japan

The disclosure, coming from the Japanese as it did, indicated that no such attempt would be made by Tokyo to bail Hitler out of his African difficulties.

Moreover, the Japanese in Turkey said Tokyo had flatly turned down the appeal on the ground that Japanese naval forces had been so depleted and were still so urgently engaged by American forces in the Pacific that they could not be spared to divert Allied strength from the Egyptian quarter.

The French acknowledged the capitulation in a communique issued at Vichy, and from there also Marshal Petain curiously instructed the island command to conduct the negotiations on a purely military basis without entering into "any political parley" with the British.

French Troops Desert

The significance of Petain's instructions could be judged in relation to the British report that more than a thousand French and Colonial troops had deserted over to the British side in the last few days alone.

In the course of the six-month campaign, the British took more than 3,000 prisoners.

U. S. Squadrons Attack Germans

LONDON, Nov. 6 (AP)—Squadrons of United States fighter planes made sweeps with the RAF today over enemy targets in occupied France while British bombers pounded German airfields at Caen.

The Americans were in the Eagle Squadron before their recent transfer to the United States army air forces. They formed part of an armada of 200 Spitfires and swept from Cherbourg to Boulogne, meeting no Nazi opposition, the Air Ministry news service said.

Fighter pilots escorted the Boston bombers as they saw bursts on the Caen airfield runways and among the airport buildings. Ground fire did not interrupt the bombing, the pilots added.

Canadian fighter pilots spotted a few Focke-Wulf-190s over the channel on their return trip. The Germans darted swiftly into France when the Spitfires moved to attack.

Australian, Pole, and Belgian pilots participated with the RAF.

Three Spitfires on an earlier raid blew up a gas tank at Gerger on Zoon on the Scheldt river in Holland. They dived toward the target at rooftop level.

Amendment To Hike Salaries of Md. Legislators Defeated at the Polls

By The Associated Press
A nearly complete count, combining both unofficial and official figures from Tuesday's elections, showed tonight that two important proposed amendments to the state constitution—one of them to hike legislators' salaries—had been turned down by the Maryland voters.

Seven proposed constitutional amendments were on the ballots Tuesday and three of them aroused the most interest—the proposed salary increase for legislators, a juvenile court system and a change in the condemnation procedure for highway projects.

On the basis of official and unofficial counts from 1,062 of the state's 1,321 polling places, the salary increase and the court proposal had apparently been beaten and the condemnation change approved.

This, in brief, is the constitutional amendment picture on the basis of the latest tabulations:

First: Legislators' salaries: apparently defeated, present vote, 48,075 for and 52,347 against.

Second: Giving the General Assembly power to set up regulations for religious requests, late questionable, present vote, 40,816 for, 41,697 against.

Condemnation Plan Approved

Third: Condemnation procedure. Approved, present vote 44,762 for, 38,364 against.

Fourth: Providing a simple and uniform system of fees in the offices of clerks of courts and registers of wills, approved, present vote, 49,379 for, 33,532 against.

Fifth: Providing an associate judge for Harford county, approved, present vote 44,544 for, 32,759 against.

Seventh: Changing requirements for publication of proposed constitutional amendments, questionable, present vote, 39,836 for, 37,601 against.

No tabulation is included from the latest tabulations: (Continued on Page 19, Col. 7)

War Labor Board Freezes Wages as Of September 15

"Pretty Damn Tough" Order Issued by Chair- man Davis

Increases Will Be Granted Only in Exceptional Cases

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—The War Labor Board announced tonight a new wage and salary stabilization policy which, said Chairman William H. Davis, would be "pretty damn tough" on proposed increases above levels prevailing on September 15.

The policy is set up under a recent order of President Roosevelt directing the board to stabilize wages and salaries under its jurisdiction virtually froze such wages and salaries at the September 15 level.

Increases above that level will be granted "only in exceptional cases" and in accordance with an economic stabilization order issued by the president on October 3, the board said. That order directed that no wage or salary increases be approved by the board "unless such increase is necessary to correct maladjustments of inequalities, to eliminate sub-standards of living, to correct gross inequalities or to aid in the effective prosecution of the war."

Follow "Little Steel" Case

In considering specific requests for wage or salary increases the board said it would be guided by the principle it set up in the so-called "little steel" case. In that case a wage increase of fifteen per cent was allowed over wage levels prevailing on January 1, 1941, to offset increases in the cost of living.

"If a group of employees," the board said, "has received increases amounting to fifteen per cent in their average straight-time rates over the level prevailing on January 1, 1941, the board will not grant further increases as a correction for maladjustments."

"To correct these maladjustments," the board will consider requests for general increases in straight time rates up to fifteen per cent above the level prevailing on January 1, 1941. This policy sets a terminal point for general wage increases. It is not applicable to individual workers or to employees in particular job classifications.

It will be applied only to groups composed of all the employees in a bargaining unit, in a plant, a company or an industry, depending upon the circumstances of each case.

Few Increases Expected

Chairman Davis told a press conference that inasmuch as most of the war industries had granted wage increases in line with the little steel principle, he expected (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

Errol Flynn Held On Three Counts In Assault Case

Actor Ordered To Appear in Los Angeles Court Nov. 23

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 6 (AP)—Errol Flynn was held today for superior court trial on three counts of statutory rape, after a preliminary hearing which ended with a photographer's testimony that the actor had told him he was being made the victim of an attempted shakedown.

Flynn, looking little like the dashing hero of a movie drama, was ordered to appear in superior court Nov. 23 for assignment of a trial date. At liberty on $1,000 bond, he is accused of twice violating Peggy La Rue Satterlee, Hollywood showgirl, on a yacht trip when she was fifteen years old, and of once raping Betty Hansen, 17, of Lincoln, Neb., at a party in a Hollywood mansion.

Statutory rape, under California law, involves any sex act with a girl under 18, whether or not with consent.

Shakedown Charged

Flynn did not take the stand, and the defense concerned itself entirely with cross-examination. The mention of shakedown came from Peter Stackpole, photographer for Life Magazine, who took pictures on the yacht trip in August, 1941, when Miss Satterlee claims she was raped.

Stackpole said Flynn telephoned him a week later and arranged a meeting.

"I believe Flynn said he was involved in what he termed a shakedown. I didn't question him as to details. He simply said he was getting involved in a shakedown which involved Miss Satterlee."

"Was anything said about money?" asked Deputy District Attorney Thomas W. Cochran.

"I believe there was," Stackpole replied. "I believe it was (Continued on Page 2, Col. 6)

Americans Take Heavy Toll of Japs on Island

Repulse Several Strong Attacks in Guadalcanal Land Battle

American Positions in East Are Reported Unchanged

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—American forces, taking a heavy toll of enemy troops, have repulsed several strong Japanese counterattacks in the land battle for Guadalcanal island in the Solomons, the navy announced today.

The Japs struck against advanced army-marine positions to the west of the American-held airfield Wednesday night and early Thursday, Guadalcanal time.

But not one of their several attempts to drive the Americans back upon the airfield was successful and presumably they left the American forces in position to continue the offensive begun last Sunday.

Attacked from Air

The Japs were subjected not only to withering fire from United States ground forces but also, a navy communique reported, to strafing from American planes which maintained "continuous air patrols" over the enemy lines.

There was no mention of opposition and apparently the planes had full control of the air.

American positions to the east of the airfield, where the Japs landed troops and reinforcements earlier this week to undertake a squeeze maneuver, were unchanged, the communique said, and so far as known here, the threat from that quarter had only been checked, rather than eliminated.

In a press conference just before the communique was issued, Secretary Knox said that Japanese casualties in the three-month-old Solomons campaign were more than four or five times as great as American losses and that this ratio was continuing. He was "inclined to believe" that this ratio was due to the superb marksmanship of the American troops.

Lull in Sea Fighting

The lull in sea fighting which set in with the retirement of the Japanese armada from the Solomons late last week continues, the secretary said, but he cautioned against any conclusion that "this is a finished fight."

"We thoroughly expect and confidently expect that they will come back," he added, explaining that American preparations were being made accordingly. Asked whether a prolonged lull in sea fighting would work more to the advantage of Japan or to the United States, Knox said it would be advantageous to both sides in that each would have more time to strengthen and dispose of its forces for the next phase.

Solomons Not Vital

Asked for comment on the importance of the Solomons campaign—the immediate prize of which is the Guadalcanal airfield—Knox said that "even if we lost the Solomons, it would not be decisive; nor would it be decisive if the Japanese lost them."

President Roosevelt remarked at his press conference earlier that the island campaign was neither decisive nor of major importance. Knox said that whether or not it was "major" was a matter of an individual's estimate but did not otherwise express his own view on this point.

Knox gave the impression at the conference that the communique to be issued afterward would report another American advance, saying his recollection was that "our forces have thrown back the enemy and gained some new ground."

The communique made no mention of any advantage following up the repulse of the enemy counterattacks, however, and naval men assumed the secretary had had in (Continued on Page 19, Col. 7)

Marines Will Trade Jap General's Pants for Whiskey or Bar of Candy

By OLEN W. CLEMENTS
HEADQUARTERS U. S. FORCES IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, Oct. 25 (Delayed)—(AP)—Money means little on Guadalcanal these days.

But the boys doing the tough fighting for the Solomons are hungry for the things they knew back home.

A bottle of whisky, no matter what brand, will get you a Jap officer's sword in a jiffy. A box of five-cent candy bars will fetch a Jap battle flag or a general's pants if there are any available.

Cigarettes, matches, soft drinks and the other luxuries have their values, too. The marines will trade any sort of battle souvenir available for whatever a traveler has in his bag. And if the leatherbacks are short of souvenirs, one of them will get out into the jungle, waylay a Jap and bring back his ears if that is what you want.

They are tough hombres hungry for sweets.

A pilot from another island landed on Guadalcanal prepared to buy some souvenirs. The first thing he wanted was a Jap officer's sword.

"How much?" he asked the marine who owned it.

"A quart of whisky and a box of twenty-four candy bars," said the marine.

The pilot was stumped. He had only money to offer.

"I'll give you a hundred dollars for it," he said.

"Nothing doing, Bud," said the marine. "I'd rather have whisky or candy."

The pilot finally swung the deal by agreeing to buy the sword for $100 cash and bring some candy up on his next trip.

Men who figure death is standing by their side at all times aren't interested in money.

GERMAN RADIO HINTS ROMMEL IS PRISONER OF THE BRITISH

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP)—The German radio in a curious broadcast tonight raised the possibility of Marshal Rommel "being taken prisoner" in Africa, suggesting that Berlin was anxious over the Axis commander's eventual fate or had not heard from him recently in the retreat across Western Egypt.

"What will Rommel do now?" the Berlin announcer asked at the opening of a late broadcast.

Then after telling of the field marshal's "tactical genius," and a possible Nazi counter-stroke somewhere in the desert, the announcer concluded with this statement:

"Political and military circles in Berlin refuse to make any predictions or utter any speculation as to the next possible developments in Africa."

"It is emphasized, however, that the characteristic and noteworthy fighting methods of German military leadership in Africa involve also the possibility of the general being taken prisoner as happened before to General von Kraewel and now to General von Thoma."

The Axis commentator said that the Axis troops "despite losses, maintain a fighting strength which makes it impossible for the British to attempt a far-reaching and over-taking pursuit."

He also mentioned that no reports of developments were available except those reported in the German high command's communique of this morning.

Hurricane Sweeps Toward Florida And Gulf Section

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 6 (AP)—The first tropical disturbance of the season roared up out of the West Indies today, striking toward the northern coast of Cuba, including Havana with its crowded population of more than 700,000.

With but nine days left of the hurricane "season," the storm made up in the lower Bahama Islands and at first was charted heading directly for the Colonial capital of Nassau and for the resort coast of southeast Florida.

By mid-day, it had veered more to the west and southwest and was found following the northern coast of Cuba, apparently aimed at the Florida straits and the Gulf of Mexico, with winds approaching and possibly exceeding seventy-five miles an hour.

Key West, the nation's southernmost city at the tip of the Florida keys, plus the small islands set like stepping stones northward to the mainland, appeared most threatened of any section of Florida. Farther north, the areas of Miami, Fort Lauderdale, Palm Beach and Melbourne were promised high winds, possibly approaching gale force, and attending high tides.

At 5:30 p. m. (EST) the Miami weather bureau reported the storm was continuing in a west-southwestward direction, with winds of seventy miles an hour along the Cuban coast.

Dangerous gales were in store for Cuba and the East Florida straits, but forecaster Ernest F. Carlson said the threat to southeast Florida apparently had passed.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 6 (AP)—Speaking before 2,000 persons, Undersecretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal awarded the army-navy "E" pennant to the Sparrow's Point plant of the Bethlehem Steel Company today.

He told his audience it could assemble for the ceremonies "with a clear conscience, because no steel is being lost, and production continues."

Forrestal declared that we are fighting a war of steel, in more than one sense—a war of steel on land, on the sea and in the air—and a war of steel spirit.

3 British Tank Divisions Pursue Axis Troops West Of Broken Alemein Sector

Three Italian Divisions, Left Behind in Mad Dash of Germans, Are Captured; Roads Littered with Debris of Axis Equipment; British Continue Furi- ous Advance; Hope to Annihilate Foe

CAIRO, Saturday, Nov. 7. (AP)—Pursuing British mobile forces, equipped with big American-made General Sherman tanks, have over-taken some of the remnants of Marshal Erwin Rommel's African Corps in the Matruh region of western Egypt, "and are steadily chopping them to pieces," front dispatches said early today.

By PAUL KERNLEE

CAIRO, Nov. 6. (AP)—Three swift British tank divisions racing into western Egypt ignored thousands of surrendering Axis prisoners today in their relentless and annihilating pursuit of the remnants of Marshal Rommel's armored forces now fleeing beyond Matruh, 104 miles west of the broken Alamein Line.

Fast motorized British infantry took charge of these German and Italian foot soldiers whose upraised hands and stunned expressions told their own story of the victorious British advance.

By now the prisoner count had exceeded 13,000, "a conservative estimate," in the words of authoritative sources. Incomplete figures also showed that the Eighth army had captured or wrecked a minimum of 339 enemy tanks. In the latest bag of seventy-nine enemy tanks, twenty were German and fifty-nine Italian.

THREE DIVISIONS TRAPPED

Three entire Italian divisions, the Trente, Brescia, and Felgare, have been trapped by the British far south of the Mediterranean coastal road at the Axis anchor positions near the Qattara depression.

These troops were abandoned as the German African Corps scurried westward. But another reason for their encirclement was effective Allied aerial blows that wrecked most of the Fascist transport.

These United States, British, and South African airmen still were hacking constantly at the fleeing Axis columns packed tight in four lanes west and south of Matruh. The entire Mediterranean coastal road by which Rommel's troops hope to escape into Libya has become "A ribbon of fire and death," AP correspondent Frank L. Martin, said in a dispatch from the front in the western desert.

Miles of Debris

For miles this road is littered with the wreckage of Axis equipment—and holes. Sometimes the debris extends for hundreds of yards on either side of the road as evidence of telling aerial blasts.

Allied airmen were constantly moving their bases westward in their knockout effort. The newly formed RAF regiment, a ground force that does this necessary work, already had taken over El Daba airfield, thirty-three miles west of the shattered Alamein line. This British group also captured 200 Axis prisoners sitting glumly at the edge of the field.

Fighter-bombers soon were roaring westward from El Daba's field to sow further destruction among the harried Axis columns, some of which are between Fuka and Matruh.

A U. S. army air forces communique issued tonight said the American fliers destroyed many of the fleeing vehicles and started fires among others. American fighters also shot down at least one Messerschmitt (Continued on Page 14, Col. 5)

Auto Safety Inspections Cancelled, 1943 Cars Will Have Only One 'Clip'

BALTIMORE, Nov. 6 (AP)—Cancellation of the annual automobile safety inspection campaign, and elimination of the rear license plate "clip" next year were announced today by Motor Vehicle Commissioner W. Lee Elgin.

Elgin said a shortage of mechanics made it necessary to call off the inspection. In previous years automobiles had to pass the inspection before new licenses would be issued to the owners.

Police, however, will watch out for "unsafe" vehicles and report them to the commissioner, who will summon the owners for hearings.

Formerly, motorists began having their cars checked from November through the middle of December. If repairs were needed, they had to be made before inspection stickers were issued.

More than 12,000 garages throughout the state had filed applications for permission to inspect automobiles by Nov. 1 of last year, the commissioner said. So far this year, only ten have applied.

"We knew some time ago," Elgin said, "that difficulties would arise in connection with the obligatory inspection of motor vehicles. Garage owners whom we have talked to are all faced with a shortage of mechanics. Most of the skilled mechanics in the state have taken work in defense plants or have been drafted."

"With this known shortage it would be more of a burden than a help to garage owners still in business. Most of them are operating large establishments by themselves and the normal flow of repair work keeps them busy the entire day."

Elgin estimated approximately twenty-five tons of steel could be saved this year by eliminating the rear license clip. The front clip will be black with aluminum numerals, a reversal of the color scheme of the old large plates which will remain on vehicles for the third year.

Five Lose Lives On Grade Crossing

LAPORTE, Ind., Nov. 6 (AP)—Five persons were killed tonight as their automobile was struck by a Baltimore and Ohio limited on a crossing at Wellshoro, twelve miles south of LaPorte.

The driver of the car was said to have pulled onto the tracks after waiting for a westbound freight train to clear. The flyer was east-bound.

The dead, all employed near here, and all residents of Hanna, Ind., located about seven miles south of the scene of the accident, were identified as:

Kathleen Gilson, 20, driver; Kathryn Rosenbaum, 18; Vivian Rowley, 37; Rhoda Hull, 19, and Richard Caesar.

They were returning home from work.

Expert Sees Staggering Possibilities in Recent Advance

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

British battle advances from Egypt continue to unfold an expanding victory pattern, achieved and in the making, of staggering proportions and possibilities. It has keyed official comment in London to a new high in war optimism.

American spokesmen, led by President Roosevelt, showed greater caution in appraising reports from the African front.

Premier Stalin said in substance that, helpful as an indicated Axis debacle in North Africa might be in easing pressure on hard-pressed Soviet armies, it did not constitute an Allied second-front operation of major scope.

That Russian view is debatable. Much depends on the success of the British effort to encircle and destroy Nazi cohorts before they can escape from the Egyptian trap into Libya; even more could hinge upon other Allied offensive moves strongly suggested in the African-Mediterranean theater.

Invasion of Italy Possible

Axis advances insist anew that a mighty sea-air Allied armada is mobilized at Gibraltar, including American troops. It may be preparing to widen the African attack or even to threaten Italy with invasion.

Hope obviously is running very high in both London and Cairo that a blow is being dealt to Italian morale in the field and on the home front that could start unraveling the Axis at its Fascist-Nazi seam. Official Cairo reports of Italian foot troops in Egypt found abandoned in the desert while their German "allies" seized all available mechanized equipment to decamp westward are calculated to intensify Italian dislike and distrust of their Nazi partners.

Italians Sacrificed

There is evidence in both German and Italian official accounts that the exigencies of his perilous retreat have forced Rommel to sacrifice some low moving elements of his command. That would include Italian or other infantry units deployed on the south flank of the shattered El Alamein defense front.

Powerful tank forces were speeding through breaks to outpace the Axis coastal retreat and hem its main strength in from the rear against the sea. The Nazi commander might be forced to requisition all available motorized equipment to hasten his westward trek down the coastal road before the trap closed upon him.

That would account for Axis intimations that along the coast the British advance is a score or two miles west already of the farthest west indicated in Cairo announcements. Both Rome and Berlin speak of action near Matruh, more than 100 miles west of the collapsed original Axis defense line. Cairo is content with shorter advance strides by fifty miles or more.

State Air Raid Director, However, Flays Truck Drivers

(By The Associated Press)

Col. Henry S. Barrett, state air raid precautions director, said Maryland's first statewide unannounced alert today was a "swell job in Baltimore."

He added that it was "too early" to get any reports on observance throughout the state of the nineteen-minute drill. Unofficial reports from Westminster, however, said everything there had gone "perfectly."

Executive Director Robert France, of the Maryland Council of Defense, said he, Col. Barrett and W. Frank Roberts, chairman of the Maryland Council of Defense, were in the control center when the alert sounded.

Make Tour of City

"We immediately went down to our automobile to tour the city," he said. "Within three minutes after the start of the test, wardens began to appear on the street corners with their helmets, armbands and other equipment and herded the people toward shelters and halted vehicle traffic."

There was a "real feeling of co-operation" about the entire test, Roberts added. He said he noticed that in general all vehicles halted, but "only about a third" of passengers in street cars left them to go to shelters.

Raps Truck Drivers

Barrett declared, however, "there certainly are some pigheaded truck drivers who don't want to comply with the regulations, but they are in the minority."

"As far as the downtown business section was concerned, everyone did a wonderful job. I doubt whether any other city on the eastern seaboard did so well in their first unannounced alert as Baltimore."

Praises "Incomparable Heroism" on 25th Anniversary

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—President Roosevelt, in a message to President Mikhail Kalinin on the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution, praised the "incomparable heroism" of the Russian army and people in the struggle against Nazi conquest and assured him that "the steadily growing power of the United States, has been and will continue to be dedicated to complete victory."

Secretary of State Hull expressed similar sentiments in a congratulatory message to Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov. The United States, Hull said, "is resolutely gathering its might and is increasingly bringing it to bear against our common enemy."

Mr. Roosevelt's message to President Kalinin follows:

"On the occasion of this twenty-fifth anniversary of the establishment of the Soviet state, I convey to your excellency the congratulations of the government and people of the United States."

"For the second time in a generation, our two countries are in the forefront of a gathering of nations aligned against a common enemy. Collaboration in the highly military task before us must be the prelude to collaboration in the mightier task of creating a world at peace."

"The resistance of free peoples has made possible the mounting power of the united nation. The Russian army and the Russian people in their continuing struggle against Nazi conquest today bear the brunt of the massed weight of the Nazi might and their incomparable heroism stands as a symbol of determination and unrelenting effort."

"Let your excellency be assured that the steadily growing power of the United States has been, and will continue to be, dedicated to complete victory."

Knox, Roosevelt Express Elation Over Axis Defeat

But Both Refrain from Calling It an All-Out Victory

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—President Roosevelt and Navy Secretary Knox both expressed elation today over the rout of Marshal Rommel's Axis forces in Africa, but cautiously refrained from characterizing it as a complete all-out victory as yet.

Mr. Roosevelt said it looks like a victory of major proportions heartening to all the United Nations. Knox said the situation was gratifying but "as for a complete and all-out victory for keeps—I don't believe it is that as yet."

He said Rommel's forces had not been completely smashed.

Mr. Roosevelt said, in answer to questions, that far less than half of General B. L. Montgomery's equipment had come to the United States and that this had been instrumental in the advance only to a minor degree.

Asked about the Solomon Islands, he said that because of the problems of transporting men and materials, the operations on Guadalcanal island were not of major proportions. He added, however, that the real importance of an action could not always be measured by its size.

Lack of Adequate Flag Protection Blamed For Dickerson Wreck

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—Blaming the rear end collision wreck on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad at Dickerson, Md., on failure to provide adequate flag protection and to operate a train in accordance with signals, the Interstate Commerce Commission made this charge in a report today.

"During a period of twenty-one months immediately prior to this accident, the commission investigated, among others, eight accidents which occurred on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad as a result of failure to comply with provisions of the operating rules."

The wreck on which the ICC reported today resulted in the death of twelve persons, two missing and seventy-six injured. It occurred on September 24 when an eastbound streamliner plowed into the rear end of another eastbound train which had stopped to repair an air compressor. The rear end collision threw a sleeping car of the first train into a westbound freight train.

War Labor Board

very few increases to be granted in the future.

"I think that if you study this policy," Davis said, you will find that it is pretty damn tough."

Davis' board has control over all non-agricultural wages and over salaries of supervisory or professional employees. The treasury has jurisdiction over supervisory and professional salaries under $5,000, and over all salaries of more than $5,000; while the secretary of agriculture has jurisdiction over farm wages.

The board said its new policy has been adopted unanimously by its public, labor and industry members.

Will Consider Some Cases

The Labor Board said it would consider proposals for wage increases designed to eliminate rate inequalities which "represent manifest injustices that arise from unusual and unreasonable differences in wage rates" but that it would not disturb wage differentials which are established and stabilized and normal to American industry.

The board said it was not in a position at this time to enunciate a general policy to cover wage adjustments to eliminate sub-standards of living.

"Such cases involving sub-standards of living as may arise will be considered by the board on their individual merits until sufficient experience has accumulated to permit the statement of a more general policy," the board said.

It served notice that it would not approve wage increases for the purpose of influencing or directing the flow of manpower from one industry to another, or from one area to another.

"When in a particular case, management and labor, in cooperation with the war manpower commission and other government agencies, have taken concerted action to solve a manpower need, the board will consider a request in that case to correct whatever inequalities or gross inequalities may then need correction."

Details of procedure under which the board will handle voluntary applications for wage adjustments by employers were also announced. Ten regional offices will be established by the board to handle such applications. Also, the 100-odd field offices of the wage and hour division of the department of labor will be used in taking such applications. The regional directors will be granted authority to adjust rates to correct maladjustments only in cases arising in industries to be designated by the board. Chairman Davis said this list would be announced in the next few days.

The regional directors will have tripartite boards composed of representatives of the public, labor and employers. These boards will advise the directors on the setting up of the administrative machinery in each region.

'Happy Birthday' Messages Banned For the Duration

Telegraph Companies Ordered To Discontinue Such Telegrams

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—Telegrams of felicitation, including "Happy Birthday" and "Merry Christmas," were banned today, effective Dec. 15.

The Board of War Communications directed the telegraph companies to refuse such messages for the duration, and to discontinue a number of other services which were held unnecessary to the war effort.

In connection with this move to facilitate the handling of important messages, the board also directed the companies to cut by one-third the time required to handle business messages delivered by messenger and to clear messages on the wire within seven minutes after they reached the operating room.

Act After Investigation

Acting on an investigation made at the request of the Federal Communications Commission, the BWC said it had determined that immediate steps were necessary to gear the telegraph industry more closely to the war effort.

Specifically banned beginning Dec. 15 are felicitations and congratulatory messages such as greetings sent for Christmas, New Year, Father's and Mother's days, Valentine's day, and on the occasion of birthdays, graduations, weddings, anniversaries and birthdays. An exception was made for such messages to servicemen abroad.

Also listed for discontinuance Dec. 15 were such services as messenger, errand, distribution, remittance, installment payments, shopping, acceptance of express packages and sale of travelers' checks and mail money orders.

Nov. 25 Is Deadline

The wire services were given until Nov. 25 to file objections to the order.

A Western Union official said that his company already had dropped errand and distribution service and acceptance of railway express packages. A postal telegraph official said that his company still was handling errand service on a restricted basis.

Both companies have dropped the so-called fixed text telegrams which were offered at special rates on all holidays and for any special occasion such as birthdays and graduations. These messages were designated by numbers and only the address, signature and number had to be actually sent over the wire.

No 90-Day Thinkers among American Fighting Men in the South Pacific

By WALTER B. CLAUSEN
PEARL HARBOR, Nov. 6 (AP)—There are no ninety-day victory thinkers among the American fighting men in the jungle wilderness of the South Pacific islands.

Their experiences with life in the raw and their contact with realities there make them feel as if they were living in a different world. And they are thinking differently, also. They are convinced that it will take years to lick the Japanese.

Above all, this realization stirs their emotions deeply when they hear reports from the mainland of folks at home at war will be over in sixty or ninety days. That makes the fighting men really feel that the folks at home don't realize what a tough and desperate job Americans have been plunged into.

There is no wishful thinking in the front lines of the battle of the Pacific. These men face stark realism. They know that the war in the Pacific is the toughest war that Americans have ever faced.

It is now three months since the American offensive was launched in the South Pacific, and eleven

Political Truce Prospects Look Good to Leaders

Winning the War To Be Only Goal for the Duration

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—Prospects of a political truce seemed to increase today as President Roosevelt and leaders in the greatly strengthened Republican party emphasized anew that winning the war was the paramount task before the country.

At a press conference, a reporter asked Mr. Roosevelt whether the results of Tuesday's elections would make any difference in his attitude toward Congress.

Why should it? Mr. Roosevelt asked.

He went on to say that he assumed Congress also wanted to win the war.

Persisting, the reporter said that what he wanted to know was whether the president would confer now with both Republican and Democratic leaders about legislative procedure. Mr. Roosevelt replied that he had been doing that.

The president made what appeared to be an indirect reply to those who have been accusing the administration of dictatorship.

Has Pleasant Surprise

Asked how he could account for the election results, he said he had had a very pleasant surprise, a perfectly delightful surprise, when he went to vote at Hyde Park, N. Y., Tuesday and found the political place open.

"Do you think people expected it to be closed?" a reporter queried.

With a grin, Mr. Roosevelt said that apparently the reporter had not been reading some of the papers.

On Capitol Hill a movement was developing to declare a holiday on politics in order to concentrate on the common objective of victory over the Axis. Senator McNary of Oregon, Republican leader, who has attributed Democratic election reverses to "shocking wastes" in expenditures and other factors, said:

McNary's Position

"We are willing to forget the election if the administration will remember the implications it contained."

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), who has suggested a "united committee on war co-operation," added today in further comment on the elections:

"This is no time for a jubilee, it's time for a prayer meeting. The loyal opposition asked the country for a mandate and got it. We must now deliver the goods and that means from here on out there must be maximum efficiency and a minimum of mistakes both at home and abroad in the winning of the war."

British Reported Active at Gibraltar

LONDON, Saturday, Nov. 7 (AP)—A German radio broadcast early today reported the British battleship Rodney, one of a large number of British warships said to be maneuvering mysteriously around Gibraltar, and a large convoy of freighters, steamed away from the British base yesterday.

The convoy, the radio said, headed into the Mediterranean, but there was no indication of the direction the battleship took. The Rodney, the German report added, was protected by an "air umbrella" of fighting planes.

Kaiser's Doctors Get Draft Threat, Committee Hears

Company Medical Program Is Discussed at Hearing

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—The medical director for Henry J. Kaiser's west coast shipyards declared today that some members of the organized medical profession were threatening to lay Kaiser company doctors open to the draft unless they dropped certain group health activities.

Dr. Morris Fishbein, a leader in the American Medical Association, immediately replied that AMA doctors in charge of the government's procurement and assignment service for the armed forces have carried out their duties in a high-minded way.

Dr. Fishbein said that if he should find any doctor attempting to coerce anyone by saying "you will do so-and-so or you will be declared essential to military service" he would "be the first to recommend that man's removal from his position."

Clash at Hearing

The statements were made at a lively session of a Senate labor subcommittee studying manpower problems and led to several tiffs between Kaiser and Dr. Fishbein, editor of the AMA Journal.

Dr. Sidney Garfield, Kaiser's medical chief, said that the threats were made by physicians of the procurement and assignment service, a branch of the war manpower commission charged with procuring doctors for the armed services.

Dr. Garfield testified that the chairman of the service in the state of Washington, whom he did not name, was president of the State Medical Society's executive committee, that the service "represents the views of the American Medical Association," and that the medical profession does not like prepaid medicine.

Declares Doctors Threatened

The company instituted a plan under which workers pay fifty cents a week, which entitles them to medical attention for themselves and their families when necessary. Dr. Garfield testified that the state procurement chairman had threatened, in effect, that Kaiser doctors would be drafted if they served the employees' families on the prepayment basis.

Dr. Fishbein said that the procurement and assignment service and the AMA had adopted a policy for setting up prepayment medical plans in all industrial areas where they would best meet civilian needs.

Few Doctors Available

The witnesses also discussed the general policy of inducing doctors and complaints that the number of physicians available to treat civilians in some areas has become dangerously small.

Dr. Garfield said that private facilities at Vancouver, Wash., were inadequate to care for the workers' families.

At Seattle, Dr. Raymond L. Zech, Washington state chairman of procurement and assignment of physicians for the armed forces and chairman of the State Medical Association's executive committee, said in a statement there was no medical care problem at present in Vancouver.

Agree Upon Program

He also said that Dr. Garfield had agreed "orally and in writing" to a program for medical care at Vancouver.

The statement contained no comment on Dr. Garfield's testimony concerning the purported draft threat.

Kaiser himself detailed the medical situation in the shipyards and asked Dr. Fishbein, "What would you do in my case?"

"If I were you," Dr. Fishbein answered, "I would ask my medical director not to sit there but to look into all the possibilities and to go to those (federal agencies) who have the information on how to meet the problem."

Dr. Fishbein remarked that it was impossible to build new hospitals because of inability to obtain materials but Kaiser observed, "we are doing it."

$5,000. Flynn told me he had a print of her developed in color and was going to caption the picture 'five thousand dollars'."

On cross examination, Defense Attorney Jerry Giesler asked: "Did Flynn ask you to destroy the photos?"

"No," Stackpole answered, "at one time I said I was willing to destroy them, but he didn't insist."

Giesler wound up three days of cross-examination of Miss Satterlee taking her in minute detail today over ground largely covered in her previous testimony—her acquaintance with Flynn and her description of what actually happened on the boat.

Flynn, at conclusion of the preliminary hearing, which opened last Monday, said in a statement:

"The district attorney has had the ball so far. When I get it the picture will change. My ultimate vindication is all that counts, and I have complete confidence in the essential fairness of the American majority."

The two girls were remanded to custody of the juvenile court pending the superior court hearing Nov. 23.

Two Local Negroes Are Recommended for Paroles from Prison

Two Allegany county negroes serving two years in the Maryland penitentiary for burglary last January have been recommended for parole by Herman M. Moser, state parole director.

They are Arberry Wheeler and John W. Ewing. County authorities said last night that the two negroes had been implicated in several robberies in this county. They entered the Eller Chevrolet garage here and the Gunter Service Station, Frostburg.

Roosevelt Sees Production Cut In Longer Week

Opposes Working More Than 48 Hours in American Plants

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—Amid some discussion in Congress over suspending or repealing the forty-hour week laws, President Roosevelt declared today that examples in England and Germany proved that a working week longer than forty-eight hours was not conducive to greater production.

The president's press conference discussion, in which he complained that the fatigue factor was generally not recognized, was seen as a reply to the move of Senator O'Daniel (D-Tex.) to suspend the wage-hour law for the duration and similar sentiment voiced in the House.

Mr. Roosevelt said that the working week in the production of most important war goods is forty-eight hours, overtime being paid for work beyond forty hours, and that the average working week in all war production is between forty-six and forty-seven hours.

Beyond that point, he said, production is not increased by a longer working week except in the first few weeks or months after it is installed. He recalled that on his recent inspection tour he was told that where men had been working overtime up to fifty-four or fifty-six hours a week they often incurred absences afterwards because of fatigue.

Reviews German Plan

He reported that Germany last spring increased the work week to seventy and eighty hours with the result that production spurred for two months and then declined until it was not as great as that of a forty-eight-hour week. These reports, he said, came from intelligence services.

Meanwhile Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board, and Henry J. Kaiser, west coast shipbuilder, testifying before Senate committees, endorsed manpower control legislation and said further that they thought voluntary enlistments in the armed services should be stopped.

"I don't believe we ought to dilly-dally with this war," Nelson told the military committee. "I believe we ought to put our teeth in it. The people of this country are going to demand that Congress do something of this kind before we get through."

Plan Fair, Austin Says

Senator Austin (R-Vt.) expressed the belief that through national control of manpower all Americans would have assurance they would be treated impartially whether they were needed at the front or in essential civilian services.

"We are going to have to do it before we are through," Nelson agreed.

Kaiser, whose shipyards have set production records, urged before a labor subcommittee that a nine-member committee be established to allocate men and women where needed—in the armed forces, war plants and essential civilian industries.

The committee, he said, should include representatives of the army, navy, maritime commission, agriculture, war industries and essential civilian industry, with two spokesmen for labor and a neutral representative. The committee, operating through regional directors, would have authority over the selective service system as well as over manpower needed for farms and factories.

Present Policy Confusing

Kaiser called the government's present manpower policy confusing and counseled immediate action to halt the flow of skilled industrial workers into the armed services.

Nelson said he believed greater efficiency could be attained in the use of workers. He suggested a longer work week, better management, greater use of women and negroes, curtailment of the use of manpower for less essential purposes, and remedying worker absenteeism. There are entirely too many cases of "Monday morning sickness and payroll sickness," he said.

Dr. Sidney Garfield, medical director for Kaiser's shipyards, told the subcommittee that Medical Society officials had sought to deter company doctors from treating workers' families under a prepaid medical care program.

Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the American Medical Association Journal, declared that if young doctors were retained in industry, "the needs of the armed forces can't be met."

Willkie Asserts Turkey Holds Key To War Situation

"We Can Win or Lose in That Area", He Says in Speech

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie declared tonight that North Africa and the region around Turkey might well be "the area" in which our war may be won or lost, and called on Prime Minister Winston Churchill to define clearly Great Britain's stand on the Atlantic charter.

In a speech prepared for delivery at a forum sponsored by the New York Times Willkie said that the United States should do its utmost to lead Turkey and added:

Would Help Turkey

"They are prepared to bargain. They would like to deal with us. They produce, in Turkey, nearly one quarter of the world's supply of chrome. Their tobacco and their cotton are badly needed by other countries. With these assets, the Turks can buttress their neutrality, for the time, at any rate. But this will not be for a long time, I am convinced, unless we help them."

"They need foodstuffs, wheat, especially, and they need manufactures and machinery. We are today the only country which can adequately supply them. I deeply believe that it is to our interest to do so, as far as we are able, to prevent Turkey's resources from going to our enemies, and to preserve the neutrality of a country which wants to be our friend."

It was his impression, Willkie said, that Turkey was "a very respectable problem for any aggressive nation which might want to use Turkey as a highway to conquest of the east."

The 1940 Republican presidential candidate said he was very glad that President Roosevelt "stated clearly and without reservation that as far as this country was concerned 'the Atlantic charter appealed to the entire world.'"

Quotes Churchill

Prime Minister Churchill, however, has spoken "in somewhat different language," Willkie declared. He read from a speech made by Churchill in which the prime minister said that the Atlantic charter did "not qualify in any way the various statements of policy which had been made from time to time about the development of constitutional government in India, Burma, or other parts of the British empire."

"This statement," Willkie said, "caused 'bewildered despair' in the Middle East and Far East."

The president and prime minister should get together and be "concise and clear and specific" in what we mean about the Atlantic charter, Willkie asserted.

Willkie said that comment on his broadcast of his globe-circling trip had pleased him greatly.

"It has confirmed my feeling that the deep drift of public opinion which works powerfully but quietly has already moved ahead of many of our leaders," he said.

He suggested that this public opinion may "put us into the open acknowledgement, before the world, of the beliefs we hold most firmly."

7 Women Killed In Rochester Fireworks Plant

Several Others Injured and May Die; Investigation Under Way

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 6 (AP)—Seven women were killed and ten other employees of the Rochester fireworks company were injured in an explosion this afternoon at the company plant in the town of Perinton. Sheriff Albert Skinner said.

Authorities identified the dead as: Evelyn M. Bigelow, 27; Angelina Mandell, 31; Viola Close, 60; Mary Parsons, 43; Bertha Archambo, 53, all of East Rochester, and Evelyn Ellis, 43, of Fairport.

Officials of the fireworks company said the condition of some of the injured was so critical that deaths might result.

The explosion was caused when a tray of powder carried by a workman was set down or dropped hard enough to create a friction spark, investigators said.

The blast, which started a fire, was comparatively light, witnesses said, but the powder-fed flames spread so swiftly through the one-story building that only one or two of the employees at work escaped unharmed.

The seven burned to death were trapped in the building, the sheriff said. Workers had started on the 4 p. m. shift and one of them, Evelyn Ellis, had just been employed twenty minutes earlier. The building was the only one used by the plant for the night shift and flames razed it in a few minutes.

Republican Opportunity

A GIGANTIC RESPONSIBILITY rests upon the Republican party as a result of its sweeping gains at the polls on Tuesday. The nation is looking toward the GOP for courageous service in the cause of victory, and for firm insistence upon a return to the America economic system after the war.

The situation resulting from the election is perhaps better than if the Republicans had gained actual control of the House, though in effect it has gained potential control by reason of the fact that it can, on timely occasions, enlist the aid of anti-New Deal Democrats in resisting objectionable New Deal proposals. But as it is, the responsibility remains Democratic whereas, so far as the House is concerned, it would have devolved upon Republicans had they gained House control. With Republican gains in the Senate a similar situation is approached there. On the whole the upturn will be most salutary. The big thing is that the Roosevelt bossism of Congress will be definitely stopped.

The responsibility that has come to the Republican party in this crisis in the nation's history, however, is the greater because the vote of confidence in it did not—could not—be a directive to control the war effort.

The Republican party will be expected to hasten victory, although still in the minority in the national government. This is a difficult role at best, and in wartime a role that demands clear heads, brilliant leadership and unswerving fidelity to American ideals and institutions.

But because the responsibility is great and the sword of Damocles will hang constantly over the greatly strengthened party of the opposition, its opportunity is such as it has not had since 1930.

When substantial gains were made by the Republican party in the mid-term elections in 1938, most observers discerned a significant trend, but it was a trend that was crushed in 1940 by war. But there is no mistaking the significance of the trend of 1942, unequivocally registered by the voters eleven months after Pearl Harbor. The American people want to get on with the war and win it, and they want to return to the traditional American way of life after the war.

In undertaking the tasks for which they have been elected, Republican congressmen and Republican governors as well must demand a full share in the war effort and the war direction. They must fight at once the narrow partisanship which has attempted to make winning of the war an exclusive New Deal prerogative, with all others relegated to the role of compliant order takers.

How much the continued attacks upon the free press of America by the New Deal contributed to the Republican landslide cannot be definitely determined. Persistent attacks upon the Chicago Tribune by the screwball element in the administration certainly aided materially in the Midwest. New Deal attacks upon the Associated Press helped throughout the nation. America has served notice that it does not want a Hitlerized press and in the interest of unity it should be hoped that President Roosevelt henceforth will devote his press conferences to handing out any news he may happen to have, instead of to continuation of his policy of calling in the reporters to tell them how newspapers should be edited. The time has come to get down to the job of winning the war, and in this the results of the elections will be of material aid.

Work for the Autocrat Of the Breakfast Table

ADOLF THE DICTATOR in one of his addresses, characterized as usual by guttural cacophony and loud breathing, deplored the fact that the German people do not have coffee. He asserted that he does not drink coffee, but that he saw no reason why the German people should not have it if they wanted it.

If a shortage of coffee in America has as rousing an effect upon civilians in this country, they are likely to become the world's most bellicose people.

Despite the fact that there are many substitutes for coffee on sale in this country, it is generally known that there are many Americans who are convinced beyond the possibilities of conversion that there is no substitute as far as they are concerned.

The news that they must do with a maximum of one pound for five weeks comes as a shattering gustatory blow. And no amount of Anglo-American co-operation or improved understanding is likely to make of America a nation that enjoys tea for breakfast.

Agents of this department assert that there are Americans who drink as many as four cups of coffee at breakfast and two or more at dinner. How they will manage to fare on one cup a day is something of a mystery at present—a problem that only time will solve. But then think of the girls and boys under 15 who are to get no coffee allotment at all.

Will the parents and older members of the family part with their single cup of the day to fill the cup of sorrow of the younger generation? Who is going to be the autocrat of the breakfast table to iron out these difficulties and prevent early morning feuds?

It may be that persons who favored coffee rationing will now regret it on the ground that they did not anticipate that the allotment per person would be so low. Or perhaps they are coffee prohibitionists and will gleefully hail this enforced reduction in the national quaffing of the beverage.

Voting Percentage Lesson For Maryland Republicans

THIS NEWSPAPER confesses an error in calculating the percentage of the Allegany county potential voting in an editorial of yesterday. It stated that this amounted to 61.22 per cent, whereas it should have been somewhat less.

In the light of the figures announced by the board of election supervisors at the court house, which disclosed a larger total vote cast in Allegany county than that estimated yesterday, the percentage of those voting, as compared with the total registration (the board's figures differ from an Associated Press table which the News used and which antedated the former) was approximately forty-eight per cent, or, to be exact, 47.74.

As for the potential voting, there are two ways of arriving at this in using the fifteen per cent estimate of an absentee vote of service men and war workers. One is to add the approximate total of these absentees, as the News did yesterday, to the vote cast. That would reveal a total vote of 55.78 per cent. (By error, the News gave this yesterday as 61.22.) But the more accurate method would appear to be to subtract the number of the absentees from the total registration.

Thus we should have a registration, or available vote basis, of 37,894, instead of 44,581 as reported by the election board. That would bring a percentage of 52.46.

Some experienced observers, however, say the subtraction should be twenty-five per cent, instead of fifteen, to allow properly for deaths and for those in war services or industries. On that basis the available total vote would be cut down to 33,414 and show a voting percentage of sixty-four per cent, which isn't so bad.

The point now to be impressed is how narrowly the Republicans of Maryland missed electing their governor by not going to the polls in slightly larger number.

The latest available tables showing the total vote cast in the state for governor—and some precincts were missing—placed the O'Connor vote at 189,812 and the McKeldin vote at 173,556, or a total of 363,368.

Now, O'Connor won by around 16,000 plurality; hence, if the Republicans all over the state had amassed a bit more than 44 per cent of their registration, they would have won the governorship, and an entirely different picture would be on view.

The figures carry a lesson Republicans should heed in their preparations for another Maryland election.

Newly-made cups in Britain will have no handles. That puts 'em on a par with all those not-so-new cups in the kitchen cupboard. But without a handle, how can one lift a cup of steaming hot coffee — if one should have the coffee?

"Pork—six cents a pound; beef—five cents a pound." And then we took another look and saw we were reading the "From-Our-Files-of-Fifty-Years-Ago" column.

To our list of new heroes can be added the western judge who fined a motorist one tire, in excellent shape, for drunken driving.

Why Belittle Ourselves?

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Why do we minimize ourselves? Why do we throw mud at the one we know best of all? We're the only species on earth that does that.

A tiny kitten will arch its back and spit fiercely at a passing dog. A puppy will claim all the attention a family can give it. A wasp does no belittling. The green snake in the garden—"that narrow fellow"—the snorting bull in the field, the chattering blue jay overhead, all these know nothing of belittling. Only human beings squeeze a bitter pleasure out of belittling themselves to others who come their way.

I can think of two kinds of belittlers in the human species. One is the crafty belittler. He depreciates his own abilities, he straightens his proffered praise to gain your increased admiration, achieve the reputation of being a very modest fellow in addition to being a man of great ability. . . . We can cross him off—he is no true belittler. He wears the mask of shrinking modesty but does not belong.

The true belittler means what he says. He thinks he's a poor worm and wishes you to think so, too. He has the worst automobile on earth, the saddest heart. Nothing he plants ever comes up, no bid at bridge ever comes out right, none of his dreams come true. His friends don't like him, his wife hates him, nobody notices him in a crowd, no one ever listens to him when he clears his throat. Fish get off his hook, dogs refuse to mind him, life is a mess. Everyone else is happy and confident, why can't HE be happy and confident, too?

The secret is that he's sick. He is his own worst belittler. Something happened long ago. Someone told him he wasn't much and would never be much—and, poor fellow, he believed what he heard. He thought someone else knew more about himself than he did. The belittling habit grew on him until it became a perverse pleasure. Now when he is praised it makes him happy to deny his own worth.

And secretly the monster of self-deprecation is a monster of egotism!

F. D. R. Challenger Not Yet Discerned By Paul Mallon

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Mr. Wilkie's endorsement of Dewey for the New York governorship was somewhat like Mr. Roosevelt's endorsement of Bennett—only longer delayed.

Both the president and the leader of the Republicans (in name, at least) know how to swallow unwanted medicine with consummate ease. Both have done it better than they did this time, and the results are likely to have important effects upon the rising question of the presidential nominations in 1944.

The Dewey people have let no one around the Republican council table here suspect they consider Mr. Wilkie an ally. Neither Dewey nor Wilkie has any close connections among Republicans in either house of Congress, but their prevailing contacts are sufficient to dispel any expectation here of joint Wilkie-Dewey leadership.

Both Doubtful
In fact, the most clearheaded of Republican politicians doubt that either of these most discussed candidates will be at the top of the roll call at the next Republican national convention.

Dewey has followed a course so far of a lone ranger in Republican politics. Unless he builds up controlling contacts with the Republican state machines, which will rise up under the administration of the twenty-two Republican governors in the most populous states, his position in the party cannot be dominant. And, of course, his administration as governor will largely make or break his popular national appeal.

Neither could get the nomination on the basis of his standing with the organization today.

Fourth Term More Doubtful
The fourth term question is in even a more doubtful state. The Roosevelt endorsement of Bennett was not soon enough or strong enough to win back Farley, who now controls the New York State Democratic organization, and who can expect to go to the next convention as its delegation leader.

Inasmuch as Mr. Farley disliked the third term enough to resign, he will dislike the fourth at least twenty-five percent more.

Southern congressmen already are grumbling about fourth term talk. They think it hurt the party in the election, and that if any moves are made further in that direction, they will suffer further.

As of today, therefore Mr. Roosevelt would have far more trouble getting the nomination than he had at Chicago, although no specific challenger is yet in sight.

But if we win the war next year, the situation might change. The president no doubt would gain heroic prestige from victory.

Many wise Democratic leaders have quietly smiled away the results of this election, in anticipation of a victorious turn of events before their next roll call with the people.

Therefore, an attempt to judge either race, is premature. Coming events will decide.

War Help Angle
There is not much the Republicans will be able to do about war methods immediately—except to let the moral effect of their victory sink in upon the administration leaders.

Most of the important economic legislation already has been adopted (taxes, anti-inflation, the war powers act, passing unprecedented authority to the president).

Manpower draft is about the only outstanding issue yet scheduled for consideration after the first of the year.

Most of the war appropriations already have been made, but a new budget will be offered, upon which the Republicans will have an opportunity to whittle.

Investigations will no doubt be made by congressional committees to keep the administration in line.

Election Result a War Help According To Eloquent Precedent, Sullivan Says

Draft Limit To Go Out

The 18-19-year-old draft will be out of the way in a few days. No doubt it will be adopted without the Senate restriction requiring training of troops for a year before being sent overseas, because the War department will insist. War authorities have already let the congressmen know Mr. Roosevelt will veto the bill if that amendment is not made suitable.

One senator has canvassed the chamber and found that five senators, who were up for re-election, are now ready to change their votes. As the amendment passed by only 39 to 31, this is enough to allow War department wishes to prevail.

It could not be any different if the Republicans were in control. In such matters, accordance to the demands of those military men who are running the war must be followed as a general rule, regardless of desires of the heart or politics.

Mr. Savold, Philosopher

From the New York Herald Tribune

A heavyweight pugilist, Mr. Lee Savold, once of St. Paul but now living peacefully in Paterson, N. J., came up the other day with an observation which, the more we think about it, has all the earmarks of something really profound and useful to the human race. He was bold enough to question the dictum that all good fighters are hungry fighters.

The idea that, to be outstandingly proficient, a pugilist had to be speculatively underprivileged, has been one of tenets of the prize ring for a long time. One of the chief proponents of this theory was the late James DeForest, a highly respected trainer; Mr. DeForest contended that good fighters not only must be hungry but he suggested that their ancestors likewise must have been hungry—"all champions come out of the gutter," was one of his most widely quoted aphorisms.

This theory had wide acceptance among pugilistic thinkers and it spread to the arts, business and the professions. Personnel managers and employers young men were insistent that the applicant have a tough background, and that he be undernourished, scrawny, tigerish. Now comes this Mr. Savold. He has had his share of hard knocks, lean years in which he went half-starved and took some fearful beatings. For some time he has been eating regularly. He feels better; he fights better. He is easier in his mind. "There is such a thing," he says, "as being too hungry."

Revolutionary as this may sound, we suspect he has stumbled upon a great and luminous truth. Good for him!

Factographs

In the fifteen years following World War I only thirty tanks were built in the United States.

Mexican Indians built adobe structures of six or seven stories in ancient times.

Though tropical in climate, New Zealand has several glaciers.

The coastline of California is more than 1,900 miles long.

Another Useless Worry

There is another worry, which we can similarly dismiss. During the campaign there was concern lest any large loss of seats by the president's party in Congress might be misinterpreted abroad. The concern was that such an outcome might be interpreted by our enemies as lack of determination about the war on the part of the American people.

To some extent, the enemy peoples may get this impression for a little while—because they will be led to by their leaders. While the Axis leaders will know the truth perfectly well, they will send out a lie over the radio to their peoples. The German people, especially, will be told again that a country which practices democracy and holds elections, cannot be united for war. That lie will be told again—but it cannot last long.

Throughout the present war, this

Let us get rid of one worry promptly. The worry is that the results of the election—that is, the closeness of the two parties in the next Congress—may impede prosecution of the war.

Because the president's party in the next House will have a bare majority, because the opposition party will be so strong, there is fear the House may not function smoothly for fighting the war.

There need be no such anxiety. Precedent is eloquently to the contrary. The whole of the Great War, from beginning to end, was fought with just such a House as we shall now have.

In the House elected last Tuesday (according to returns known at this writing) the Democrats will have 218. That is a majority—the total of 435, but still a majority. They will have a few more. The Republicans are known to have 208 and will have a few more. But take the figures as they stand at this writing, 218 to 208.

Now turn back to the Congress Wilson had during the Great War. In the House of that time, President Wilson's party had 216, while the Republicans had 219. That is strangely close to the proportions of the coming House.

In Session during War

That Great War House was elected in 1916, was in office when war was declared in April 1917, remained in session when the armistice came in November 1918, and continued four months longer, until March 1919. Every step taken during the Great War was taken with a House thus divided. And no one can seriously say that the prosecution of the Great War was impeded by a closely divided House. Neither need any one fear that prosecution of the present war will be impeded by the closeness of the House now elected.

In the Senate it is much the same. The coming Senate is going to be thirty-eight Republicans, fifty-six Democrats (one seat still in doubt, and one Progressive). That is, the Democrats will have a margin of eight over one-half. The Great War Senate was Republicans forty-two, Democrats fifty-three. The Democrats had five more than half.

The closeness of the two parties in the coming Congress is no impediment to prosecution of the war. Any such misgiving we can dismiss.

War Hits the Farmer

From the Industrial News Review

Nowhere has war caused more havoc than in agriculture.

Almost no new farm machinery is available. Repair parts for existing machinery are always difficult and sometimes impossible to obtain. The cost of everything the farmer must buy is at record levels. Worst part of all is the farm labor situation. The draft has taken many farm workers. And the farmer simply can't afford to pay shipyard wages for help—with the result that tens of thousands of workers have left the rural areas to find high-priced jobs in war industry.

This, in part, is the farmer's answer to those who think that the increase in farm prices mean that all is well down on the farm. The plain truth is that most farmers are wondering how they will be able to keep in business—and to effect the increases in production the government wants.

The situation is particularly serious in the dairy field, where skilled and permanent help is absolutely necessary. In many states, milk is a public utility, and its price is fixed by regulatory bodies. Past quantities of dairy cattle are being sold for beef, because farmers can't obtain the necessary labor. It is time city dwellers understood some of the grave problems farmers face.

Democrats Face Crisis in Party, Lawrence Says

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—The Democratic party is faced today with a crisis from within. It defeat is due largely to the arbitrary and capricious manner in which left-wingers possessed of vast powers over the citizenry have abused their positions, especially in wartime. Unless the leadership of men like Jim Farley, who foresaw the reaction, to the mistakes of the new deal and tried to stem the tide, is taken, there will be a worse defeat for the Democrats in 1944.

This is the kind of comment one is hearing nowadays on Capitol Hill, where, among the Democrats in particular, the feeling is one of resentment and bitterness against presidentially appointed administrators who, without experience with the psychological reactions of the public gained in running for office, have piled up red tape and restrictions without regard to the effects on the electorate.

Basically, the Democrats in Congress from the South, who are non-radical, are the ones who are loudest in their protestations that the defeat of their northern brethren, due to mismanagement of the civilian economy by New Dealers, renewed demand is being made that the forty-hour-week law be amended and that the tremendous expense of time-and-a-half in overtime be curtailed or at least revised so that longer work weeks can solve the manpower shortage.

Draft Criticism Revives

There is a revival, too, of criticism of the operations of the draft law, with its unfair quota system and lack of uniformity in applying occupational deferments, especially as they relate to farm labor. Administration of the draft probably played as big a part as any single thing in arousing resentment among the voters, unless perhaps it was the way Washington officials bungled the rubber situation and gasoline rationing.

There is no doubt that the New Dealers have a defense for their acts and that many wartime restrictions were necessary, but they ignored the necessity of informing the public and advising it of the sacrifices needed to attain the wartime objectives. Thus for instance, the press would have been willing and indeed has been anxious to cooperate in every way with the government in helping to prepare the people for wartime restrictions. But the administration seemed to think it was more important to start a fight with the newspapers by making more than a thousand of the publishers of daily newspapers defendants in a lawsuit over ancient issues that could have waited to post-war days for settlement.

Press Policy Senseless

The administration's policy toward the press—a most important channel of communication between the government and the people—just doesn't make sense. The president, as the leader of the Democratic party, has taken occasion to antagonize the press, and after his recent inspection trip he did not fail to accuse writers and editors of telling lies to the public. This is hardly a means of winning cooperation of the press, because people don't become enthusiastic co-operationists in America after being beaten over the head with a crowbar.

It is fair to say that the press has been critical, but in a democracy the way to avoid criticism is to see to it that the evidence which gives rise to the criticism is met by corrective of remedial policies. Sensitiveness and resentments have no place in governmental operations. It is most unfortunate that in wartime the administration should be believed by many publishers to be carrying on a feud because the Associated Press happened to deny membership to a newspaper politically allied with the administration.

Bureaucracy at Bay

The congressional election results will stir up domestic issues and point a warning finger against the bureaucrats who have been riding high here in Washington in utter disregard of the people's wishes. The war effort will not be impaired, but actually assisted when the new Congress takes office in January. The Republicans, together with a group of southern Democrats, will control the House. Undoubtedly there will be a wave of investigations to get at the manner in which public power has been used by the bureaucrats. Heretofore, the administration has been able to squelch practically every attempt to get at the facts.

In the Senate there will be a coalition majority, too. The spirit of the new majority will be one of prodding to get things done quickly and shorten the war. Too many people have been writing to Washington saying they believe the war is being prolonged unduly and that a more efficient mechanism would have gotten ships and planes and munitions manufactured much sooner and at a much less cost than has been the case to date.

Fear of Speaking Before a Crowd Can Be Overcome

Dr. Myers Offers Tips to Victims of Self-Consciousness

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.
"I am 15 years old and a junior in high school," a letter states. "I read your daily column and I thought that you might be able to solve a problem for me."

"Ever since I entered the junior high school, I seem to have much difficulty in reading or reciting before the class. I may be able to read a paragraph, and then I seem to lose my breath and cannot go any further. When I recite before the class, it is usually no better."

"I know this may seem unimportant to you, but it is very embarrassing to me. When I stop reading in the middle of a sentence my classmates don't know the reason and they all turn around and stare. This adds to my embarrassment, which gives matters little encouragement. You would expect teachers to be a little more sympathetic."

"In junior high school, our registration teacher gave each pupil a chance to read the Bible. The morning it was my turn, I read five or six lines, and then couldn't go any further. He became very angry with me, and hurt my feelings badly, so I could no more go on than disappear from the spot on which I was standing."

The Reply

"In the first place," I replied, in part, "you should realize that you are not at all queer. Practically every junior and senior high school student has hampering feelings and emotions while attempting to express himself before his class. Indeed, I doubt whether any youth feels entirely comfortable most of the times when he speaks in class or before a larger group of his schoolmates."

"If only we parents and teachers would put ourselves, in our imagination, in your place and in the place of other youths so as to appreciate your painful emotions we could help you very much."

"But since most teachers and other adults just don't understand but go on making it hard for you, you will have to help yourself."

"1. Don't be ashamed of such self-consciousness at school any more than you would be of a cold or sore thumb. Just consider it an inconvenience. Be too proud to be hurt or frightened by the sarcasm or ridicule of the teacher. Instead, be angry at him for this savagery."

"2. Plan before you rise to speak just what you are going to say and say only that in the fewest possible words. If it is something to be read, practice before hand at reading it."

"3. Make yourself speak in class when you have something worth saying, provided you also let others have equal opportunity to talk. Participate in some school activities which afford outlets in this direction. Be also an appreciative listener."

"4. When you rise to speak, face your audience squarely and take ample time. Don't hurry. Aim to make every one in your audience listen to what you say."

"5. Don't count on rapid or even total 'cure', just on very small improvement, and with the aim of mastering your emotions rather than having them master you."

"I am enclosing a list of books on personality and mental health among which are some that might help you."

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Being a high school junior I should like to learn to improve my methods of study. Please advise me.
A. Read some wholesome material every day at a regular time and practice at recalling in your own words what you have just read."

Defeat of Nazi Invader Replaces All Other Objectives

By HENRY CASSIDY
Wide World Features

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union reaches the twenty-fifth anniversary of its creation November 7 with social experimentation in second place, at least temporarily, to the prosecution of the war.

The reforms which attracted worldwide attention for a quarter of a century and the slogan which resounded internationally—"Workers of the World Unite"—is supplanted at the top of the Soviet program by two new themes: "Everything for the Front" and "Death to the German Occupants." The latter battle cry is now the keynote of virtually every speech. It appears daily on the first page of almost every newspaper. It will ring across Red Square November 7, the anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution. Two important documents have been published in preparation for the observance of the anniversary.

One was the oath to be taken by the Pioneer members of the communist children's movement. It contained a vow of hatred for the German invaders, a tireless preparation for defense of the nation and eternal remembrance for those who have died for the fatherland. It pledged youths to "live, study and work so as to be worth the high title of Young Leninists."

Although the necessities of war are emphasized, the old ideology is not discarded under the stress of the Soviet fight for existence.

Ten commandments for Pioneers, published simultaneously, provided: First, "The Pioneer is true to the cause of Lenin and Stalin." Second, "The Pioneer dearly loves his fatherland and hates its enemies."

Industrial Gains
Another significant document was Pravda's review of twenty-five years' development under the Soviet regime.

It estimated 1940 industrial production at twelve times that of the first year; said more than a million new workers were absorbed by this war and the output of war materials has increased during the struggle.

This feat was attributed to the policy of "Socialist industrialization of the country and collectivization of agriculture."

Russia Is Stronger
Compared to 1917, when the all-Union Congress of Soviets at St. Petersburg voted the Bolsheviks into power, Russia now is in a stronger position despite deep Nazi penetration of the country. At the start of the revolution, the Soviet Union possessed no army. An untold system was taking control. Industry was in a state of collapse. A friendly regime was hemmed in by enemies.

Now, the powerful Red army has stood before Stalingrad and the Caucasus. The Soviet government and Communist party have worked with a sureness of experience. Industry, much of which was successfully evacuated to the East, has functioned at top pitch. The United States and Great Britain have lent their support as Allies.

To strengthen the war effort, a patriotic spirit is being encouraged by revival of the memory of old heroes like Suvorov Kutuzov and the renewal of traditions of guardsmen and awards of decorations for bravery.

Religious sentiment has also been brought to support the war. One of the most touching scenes in the current production of Tolstoy's "War and Peace" shows Kutuzov kneeling to kiss the cross. The atheist journals have ceased publication.

There have been some suspensions or abandonments of reforms. In industry limited hours of work and paid vacations have been dropped and the system of Commissars abolished.

There has been no fundamental change, however, in the Socialist constitution, no compromise with private industry and no disavowal of the principles of the Communist party. Soviets on the 25th birthday of their state are fighting to survive, and remain Soviets.

NO LONGER primarily interested in spread of Communism abroad, these Red Army troops are dedicated to thrusting back the invader. Here they find amusement in anti-Fascist posters.

FIRST AID with a vengeance and at any cost is the purpose of these Soviet girl "Paranurses." They leap from planes over guerrilla territory, bring help to isolated Russian wounded.

try was in a state of collapse. A friendly regime was hemmed in by enemies.

Vandenberg Asks Victory Coalition For the Duration

Senate Republican Says Unified Committee Is Necessary

By RICHARD L. TURNER
WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP) — A leading Senate Republican, Vandenberg of Michigan, has proposed a Republican-Democratic victory coalition — with "politics and new dealism" out for the duration — as the solution to war-time problems arising from the close party alignments in House and Senate.

His idea is that Congress should now create a "unified committee on war co-operation." The administration "should deal more openly with Congress" — including the Republican leadership — and with the country. The election, he added, had demonstrated popular dissatisfaction with the conduct of the war.

Would Repeal Hour Law
Meanwhile, the House heard demands that the wage-hour law and National Labor Relations Act be repealed, while a Senate colloquy found a prominent Republican and a leading Democrat agreeing that Tuesday's many Democratic losses could not be attributed to any lack of unity on the war front.

Senator Connally (D-Tex.), arose he said, to make it clear that the reverses of the administration party could not be interpreted by the propagandists of Berlin and Tokyo as any "repudiation of our war purposes."

He attributed them to public impatience with the prosecution of the war and resentment against Washington bureaucracy. Actually, he said, the voters had "registered a more desperate will to carry this war to triumph and victory."

Patriotism Not Involved
Senator McNary of Oregon, the Republican floor leader, agreed that "no issue of patriotism or unity" was raised in the campaign, and added that the administration had committed "enough mistakes and errors" to justify the people in calling it to account.

The Democrats' defeat, he said, represented revulsion against wastes in expenditures which "astonished, abashed and shocked" him and against unnecessary employment by the government "of people who should be home working at real war efforts."

Vice President Wallace, leaving a conference with President Roosevelt, told reporters that Mr. Roosevelt was in "excellent spirits." Wallace said the elections turned out the way they did because only a relatively small number of voters participated.

He said that millions of young citizens, now in the army, did not vote, and that most war workers were too busy. This, he said, deprived the Democratic party of some of its strongest support. In times like the present, he said, an abnormally large proportion of voters are "people who are well-to-do, hence are more likely to be Republican."

"It is only a miracle that the House isn't Republican under these circumstances."

Sees "Modern Record"
Later Wallace telephoned the reporters from his capitol office to offer additional comment. He said he believed the Democrats had established a modern record in keeping control of both branches of congress for six straight elections, including this one.

"How long has it been," he asked, "since one party has held control of both branches of Congress for six elections straight running?"

"The American people have always liked to shop around, and it indicates to an extreme degree their satisfaction when you find them giving majorities in both Houses for twelve years straight, including this election."

"The breath-taking thing about it is the success of the president in holding both Houses through six elections."

Call for Longer Hours
In the senate, Senator O'Daniel (D-Tex.) offered a bill to suspend the forty-hour week law during the war "to help solve our manpower problem." At the other end of the capitol, Rep. Rankin (D-Miss) and Rep. Rich (R-Pa) called for repeal of both that law and the Wagner Labor Relations Act, and demanded that the administration remove "Communists from key positions."

In Bonham, Texas, meanwhile, Speaker Rayburn expressed disappointment at the election results but said the Democrats would control the House and that "we will be able to carry on and do all things necessary in the total war effort."

Senator Vandenberg advanced his coalition suggestion as returns, all but complete, from Tuesday's election demonstrated that the party of President Roosevelt would have a plurality of no more than fifteen in the House, and no more than nineteen in the Senate.

No Working Majority
These were, however, purely paper margins. They assured the administration of enough votes to organize Congress and retain Democratic committee chairmanships and majorities. But in view of the tendency of many Democrats to bolt the administration on important issues, the returns made it clear that the administration could claim no dependable working majority.

The situation offered possibilities of prolonged and intensified inter-party quarreling. Vandenberg chose, however, to take a different approach to the problem—that of co-operation and a united congressional front to push the war effort.

"The country," he said, "wants maximum efficiency and minimum mistakes. Meanwhile, it wants new

Christian Nurture in the Family

Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might. And thou shalt teach these words diligently to thy children.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Deut. 6:4-9; 20-25; II Timothy 3:14, 15.

By Alfred J. Buescher

Thou shalt talk of these words when thou sittest in thy house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up.

Thou shalt bind them for a sign upon thine hand, and they shall be as frontlets between thy eyes. And thou shalt write them upon the posts of thy house.

And when thy son asketh thee what these mean, thou shalt tell him that we were bound in Egypt and the Lord saved us. (GOLDEN TEXT—Proverbs 22:6)

Christian Nurture in the Family

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Nov. 8, Deuteronomy 6:4-9, 20-25; II Timothy 3:14, 15, the Golden Text being Proverbs 22:6, "Train up a child in the way he should go, and even when he is old he will not depart from it.")

THE BOOK of Deuteronomy is the book of the law—the ten commandments—which were given to Moses on tablets of stone to guide his people. The early chapters record discourses by Moses on the plains of Moab, on the eastern side of Jordan. It was shortly before his death.

"Hear, O Israel, The Lord our God is one Lord:
"And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might."

This commandment, Moses told the Israelites, should be always in their hearts. They should diligently teach it to their children, talk about it in their homes, and when they were walking, when they laid down to rest, and when they rose in the morning. These people were quite inclined to forget their Lord and worship idols who were the gods of the peoples with whom they came in contact.

It was not hard for those to remember this truth who had been slaves in Egypt, and had been brought out and led to the promised land, but it was more difficult for their children and their children's children, who knew of these stirring events only by hearsay. They were the ones who should be taught daily of the miracle of their escape from slavery, and the leading of the Lord their God.

Worn as a Sign

"And thou shalt bind them for a sign upon thine hand, and they shall be as frontlets between thy eyes. And thou shalt write them upon the posts of thy house, and on thy gates."

In ancient Israel, and even today, small parchment rolls enclosed in metal covers were bound on the hand or on the brow of the Jew. The parchment contained the ten commandments or other scripture writings. In Jesus' time they were called phylacteries, and this custom has been maintained throughout the centuries by orthodox Jews, and are to be borne by every male over 13 years old at the time of morning prayer, with the exception of the Sabbath and festival days, these times being sufficient reminders of the commandments and ordinances of God. They are also hung on the right hand doorknob of the homes of orthodox Jews even today.

Now it is easy to do these things and still not hold them in the heart, as Moses instructed. If we love God with all our hearts and instruct our households so to do, earnestly and continually, we need no phylacteries to wear.

If children ask why we do these things, we are to remind them of our blessings which are conferred by God, just as the Jews were led out of bondage in Egypt "with a mighty hand." It is easy for all men to forget their blessings, to be so busy in the affairs of the world that we fail to give thanks for them. We like to do as we like, but those of us who have these things constantly brought to our minds and hearts in our homes, and the example of parents when we are young, more easily keep to them. As our Golden Text says, "Train up a child in the way he should go, and even when he is old he will not depart from it." Many can testify that this is absolutely true. Even when temptation assails, the recollection of early teaching will be of inestimable help in putting it away from us.

Paul's Adopted Son

Timothy was Paul's adopted son, the son of Eunice and grandson of Lois, and in the second book of Timothy, Paul refers to his home training by these two good women.

"But continue thou in the things which thou hast learned and hast been assured of, knowing of whom thou hast learned them:
"And that from a child thou hast known the holy scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus."

The Golden Text

Timothy learning the scriptures
"Train up a child in the way he should go. And even when he is old he will not depart from it."—Proverbs 22:6.

How To Make That Coffee S-t-r-e-t-c-h

IT'S GOT TO BE GOOD— when you are reduced to one cup of coffee per day. First step is to scrub coffee pot after each use.

MEASURE ACCURATELY. Use one level tablespoon of coffee to each cup of water. Make only what you need. This is important.

DRIP COFFEE POT is preferred by many. Use fresh, cold water, bring to galloping boil before pouring over the ground coffee.

SERVE IMMEDIATELY. Coffee loses both flavor and volume if it stands. Keep coffee can tightly covered, in refrigerator.

SAVOR THE FLAVOR. One cup of good coffee is better than two cups of bad coffee, says the Pan American Coffee Bureau.

CHERRY BETTY: A humdinger dessert

By LOUISE BENNETT WEAVER
Wide World Food Editor

If you want your meal to click all the way through, see to it that the dessert is a humdinger. Pastry desserts in keeping with cool weather needs for sturdier foods, are family favorites. Economy dried, fresh and canned fruits make up into delicious pastry dishes.

If you can still get gelatin, use it for fruit or creamy custard concoctions. These specials provide a goodly amount of nutrition at low cost. They make excellent emergency desserts because they can be prepared well in advance of serving. Baked and steamed puddings when they have molasses, honey and corn syrup in them and are accompanied by a fruit sauce.

Deep dish fruit puddings with a pastry cover are time savers and take less shortening than a escape. Sprinkle top with one-fourth cup sugar with one-eighth teaspoon cinnamon added. Bake thirty-five minutes in moderate oven. Serve warm, plain or with cranberry or lemon sauce.

BERRY ROLL can be made by patting out the pastry until it is about half inch thick and then spreading lightly with butter and one cup drained berries, chopped prunes or raisins mixed with half cup sugar, two tablespoons butter and one tablespoon lemon juice. Roll up the pastry loosely to keep the filling from oozing out and fit into greased loaf pan. Bake the roll thirty-five minutes in moderate oven and serve warm with cream.

Cherry Betty
2 cups pitted cherries
1 cup bread cubes
1 egg
1 1/2 cups cherry butter
Fill buttered casserole with bread cubes and cherries, drizzle with juice, arranging them in alternate layers. Beat eggs slightly, add sugar and cinnamon, and liquid—using cherry juice plus enough milk to make 1 1/2 cups. Pour the mixture over bread cubes and cherries. Dot top with butter and bake 1 1/2 hours at 300 degrees. Fresh or slightly dry bread may be used.

FRUIT CREAM WITH GINGER-SNAP CRUST gives a festive air to a simple meal. For the crust mix together one cup gingersnap crumbs with two tablespoons melted butter and one-eighth teaspoon salt. Stick whole walnuts around the edge and fill with the fruit blend, made like this: Soak one tablespoon granulated gelatin in one-fourth cup orange juice for five minutes. Dissolve in half cup boiling apricot juice. Add one-eighth teaspoon salt, one cup cooked apricots and one-third cup sugar. Chill until a little thick and fold in two beaten egg whites, one-fourth teaspoon cinnamon and one teaspoon grated lemon rind. Fill the crust and chill until firm—this usually takes about two hours. Serve plain or covered with whipped cream and garnished with apricots.

BANCROFT PUDDING calls for egg yolks—so here is a good chance to use up those egg yolk leftovers. Soak one tablespoon gelatin in one-fourth cup pineapple or prune juice. Add four egg yolks and blend thoroughly. Cool and let thicken a little then beat in half cup heavy cream whipped, half cup nuts, one-eighth teaspoon salt, two tablespoons lemon juice and two tablespoons honey, corn or maple sirup. Pour into a mold and chill until firm.

It seems very foolish on the part of any individual, whether he is in a car or walking to attempt to violate the rules of alerts, one state guard officer said. Such individuals are being highly selfish and thoughtless and are committing a petty form of individual sabotage.

In day light alarms, when the great majority of wardens are working, and they are conspicuous by their absence, people seem to get the idea that they can just go along anyway, when there is no one available to stop them.

Perhaps that's why in England, and in many cities in this country it has become necessary to enlist housewives and other women as air raid wardens. There should be some one on duty in every block in the day time. The women could do this and the men could take charge at night. It's something to think about and it was certainly demonstrated here yesterday.

One of the ideas of taking shelter is to eliminate the chances of being injured by flying debris and glass. Yet many people in the business-section yesterday, stood in doorways where they were surrounded by hundreds of square feet of plate glass which if suddenly shattered, would cause numerous casualties and fatalities.

In air raid alerts and blackouts, GET INSIDE AND STAY INSIDE FOR YOUR OWN SAFETY AND THE SECURITY OF OTHERS.

She is a true Christian girl, full of the spirit of Christ and impelled by her love for Him. I wish the whole world could hear her."

WOMAN OF THE ERA: THE WORKING GIRL

THE GIRLS BEHIND THE MEN BEHIND THE GUNS: America means to keep them well dressed and beautiful.

Fashion

By DOROTHY ROE
Wide World Fashion Editor

The American working girl means business, and so do the designers who are dressing her for her job. Manufacturers, safety engineers and stylists are united today in their determination to make her the best-dressed working girl in the world.

Here is a job vital to victory. Clothes that are safe, practical and becoming are necessary to her efficiency. That's why we have seen in the last few months a complete revolution in the styling of feminine work clothes. That's why some of the nation's top stylists have been called in to design slacks, uniforms and turbans for the girls who make the wheels of wartime industry go round.

The girls pictured here are dressed for their jobs in clothes that are both functional and attractive. Their turbans, designed by Glensier, are the result of lengthy conferences between designers, government safety specialists and manufacturers with special problems.

The girl at the left wears a ready-draped turban of rayon jersey which can be slipped on in two seconds, covers the hair completely and looks attractive enough for extra-curricular activities. The girl at right wears a brand new work hat of denim. The visor shades her eyes and the stiff peak protects her pompadour. The drawstring snood back is full enough to cover a shoulder-length bob. The whole can be opened flat for washing and ironing.

Beauty

By BETTY CLARKE
Wide World Beauty Editor

Dirt, alias grime, grease or dust, is a deadly enemy to clear complexion, and it is found in quantity in factories. While you girls are working at lathes, drills, welding machines and on assembly lines, patriotically doing your utmost to beat the Axis, it may sneak up and cause skin irritations.

Cleanliness is your first weapon to beat this foe of beauty. Of course, you can't be expected to wash your face every time you get a smudge of grease. But, you can do this: spend a few minutes during your lunch period cleaning your face INSTEAD of applying makeup? A shiny clear skin is more becoming to a girl in working clothes than glamor.

Before you leave the plant at night, don't be in too much of a rush to get away. Clean your skin thoroughly again so your pores can really breathe when you get out into the fresh air. Whether you use a mildly antiseptic soap or cleansing cream (keep them in your locker) depends on you.

Remember too that beauty is more than skin deep. It comes from within, so for beauty's sake take care of your health. Get plenty of sleep and watch your vitamins. A partial vitamin C deficiency can make you look sallow. Citrus fruits—lemons, grapefruit and limes—are the richest source of it. Tomatoes are good too. You should have at least one of these fruits every single day for a pretty skin.

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO

MARY LEFT THE F. B. I. office in a daze. Danver had ignored her first, easy consent to work secretly for the F. B. I.

"I don't want you to decide hurriedly," he told her. "In fact, you must think it over tomorrow and give me your answer Monday morning."

He then proceeded to give her a full, almost brutal picture of the possibilities for discomfort, physical danger, even death in the assignment she would be undertaking. As he talked, he watched Mary closely. She was wide-eyed, her breath coming in quick, excited little gasps.

"Have you ever faced actual danger?" he asked coldly.

"No," Mary admitted. "And I'm not brave. I've often wondered what I'd do if I were actually looking into the muzzle of a gun."

"You're honest, anyway," Danver acknowledged. "Well, I've told you the best and the worst that may happen. Report back here Monday morning for honorable dismissal or your next assignment."

Mary thanked him and walked slowly from the office and down the corridor of the administration building. A hand closed on her arm. She looked up with a start—into the somber smile of Bruce Martin.

"You're walking in your sleep, Redhead," he smiled, but his black eyes were searching her face intently. "Have you been on the carpet again? I'll break that guy's neck, so help me!"

Mary hid her consternation under a quick laugh. "Can't a person walk through the administration building without everyone thinking they've been in the F. B. I. offices?" she demanded.

"They can't," Bruce said with a grin. "Ask anybody what I'm doing here and they'll soon tell you. He turned and walked along with her, more nervously talkative than she had ever known him. "As a matter of fact, I am called in again," he told her. "And if there's one more argument, I'm quitting as of the moment."

Mary stopped and swung around in alarm. "No!" she cried. "Oh, no! You can't quit, Bruce! You mustn't!"

He regarded her with sullen surprise. "Why not?"

For the first time he saw the flash of exasperation in her green eyes.

"You know why not as well as I do!" she snapped. "If you leave now—under a shadow—just for the sake of a few minutes' satisfaction in telling off Mr. Danver—"

"Wow!" Bruce Martin backed off.

in mock fear, viewing the trim-tweed-suited figure with new eyes. "There is fire back there in them red locks! Guess it's not hennaed after all."

Mary's anger melted in her warm laugh. "Don't scare me like that," she warned. "I'm combustible when some people get spontaneous."

"I'll remember that," he promised with a leer, and Mary laughed with him.

"And look," she said, serious again, "don't get discouraged. Bruce. It's going to work out. I know it is!"

Before Bruce could answer, she had slipped around the corner of the corridor and disappeared. He stood looking after her. "Well!" he exclaimed.

Mary went alone to church that Sunday morning. She sat in the yellow light of the edifice and watched the shafts of sunshine find their way through the stained-glass windows and listened to the service. She drank in thirstily the triumphant paean of joy that was the choir's morning anthem, and the firm, courageous conviction in the minister's words. She moved out again into the bright morning restlessness, her troubled mind at rest, not as to whether she would take the dangerous assignment—her decision in that had never faltered—but as to her own strength.

A young man was waving from his car, stopped momentarily at the traffic light.

"Ken!" Mary ran down the church steps and slipped into the seat beside him. He closed the door and the car moved on as traffic started again.

"I worked overtime again last night and didn't get a chance to call you," he said. "Went around to the apartment this morning and Fran said to pick you up here. Good sermon?"

"Tops," Mary answered serenely. "All about David girding up his loins and going out to fight. Sometimes I think ministers are psychotic."

Ken cocked a brown eyebrow at her. "What do you mean?"

She laughed. "I mean it was just what the doctor ordered."

"You going to fight somebody?"

She laughed again, careless, teasing. "It's an uncertain world, my friend—very uncertain. It is well, sometimes, to gird up the loins."

They found Fran and Burke stretched on easy chair and couch immersed in the funnies. Fran called, "Hi, kids!" and lowered the colored comic section to reveal red-rimmed eyes!

Mary dropped her hat and purse on a chair, too amazed for even an exclamation. Fran—who never cried!

Fran caught her stunned look and grinned reassuringly. "It's nothing to worry about, chickadee," she said. "Just my love life."

Burke lowered his paper and looked at Ken and Mary with guilty appeal, but said nothing.

Ken turned to Mary. "Maybe we ought to go out and ride around the block."

"Can't you take a little punishment?" demanded Fran. "If I can survive under his cruel sense of humor, you ought to be able to. Burke's joined the Navy!"

"What?"

Burke broke in on Ken and Mary's cries with attempted explanation. "Fran, I told you why I did it. I—"

"Enlisted!" shouted Fran. "Just went down and enlisted! Didn't talk it over with me—"

"What if I had?" Burke yelled. "What would you have said?"

"I'd have said, 'No! That's what I'd have said. You couldn't even wait till our picture was shot! Just because the Japs sink a couple of our ships—"

"A couple!" Burke cried furiously. "A battleship and three cruisers and one torpedo boat!"

"So now Admiral Burke's going out as a one-man flotilla!"

Fran got up, threw the comic section into a crumpled ball at her feet. "All right," she said bitterly. "Go on! Go get blown as high as the guy in the movie last night! But get out of here now! I don't want to look at your ugly mug any longer!"

Burke took his long legs off the ottoman and stood up. "Okay, skipper," he said quietly, and started for the door. Fran put her arms around his neck as he started past her, and sobbed on his chest.

"It was a pretty swell thing to do, honey!" she moaned jerkily. "I'm awful—proud of you! I'd planned to take it—big when it came. I didn't do so hot, did I?"

Burke winked over her shoulder at Ken and Mary. "Sure you did, Funnyface," he consoled her. "You took it like a soldier."

Fran sniffed back a sob. "Wooden soldier, eh?" She wiped her eyes on his tie. "Burned up."

Mary and Ken slipped out to the kitchen. As they waited for the other two to join them, Mary's assurance of the morning wavered. How would she behave when HER testing began?

almost the power of my legs. This year I plan to take advantage of the opportunity the fates have offered me. I can't do much for my country, but at least I can walk to my office and back home at night. This necessary and compulsory form of exercise daily will certainly be resented, but will do me good.

For those in the fifties and sixties, male and female, bowling is universally recommended by the authorities. It is a mild exercise, but uses a good many muscles, both arms and legs and back, and teaches coordination and control. It is a good sign that bowling has increased in popularity so in the last few years. Besides, it has good competitive and social features.

Calisthenics and setting-up exercises I do not recommend for the very good reason that they are dull, that nobody keeps them up. In the morning is a poor time for calisthenics because your vitality is low, and before bedtime they wake you up.

You may be able before long to prove the old adage that the outside of a horse is good for the inside of a man.

Finally, never exercise beyond the point of exhaustion.

Answer: Anyone who takes too much insulin knows it right away because it causes violent trembling and sweating and weakness. These symptoms are instantly relieved by eating a lump of sugar.

Walking and Sports Help To Keep Muscles Fit for Use in Wartime

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Today we deal with the third of the three main points in any program to keep fit in wartime: (1) mental hygiene and (2) nutrition are considered in the last two articles. Now the muscles.

Use the word "muscles" for the whole vegetative system—the circulation, respiration and digestion—all the lower and somatic functions of the body. They will all be benefitted, however, if the muscles are used. Exercise strengthens the heart, improves the wind and digestion, and helps any tendency to stasis or constipation.

Muscular training unquestionably improves efficiency. Training does this:

The muscles gain in strength and size and endurance. Coordination is improved. Needless movements are eliminated. The heart gains in strength and size, and the heart beat becomes slower.

The blood pressure is, on the average, lower in the well-trained man.

"Training," writes Bainbridge, "leads to increase of power and economy of effort and the well-trained man is better equipped at almost every point to perform work than the untrained man. Nor are the advantages conferred by training purely physical, since the sense of strength and well-being which it usually engenders, colors and reacts upon the individual's outlook and action as a whole."

There is no real danger that we Want Ad Headquarters

 Cumberland Evening Times

I want to indorse your paper's often repeated claim that "Want Ads Bring Results"; also, to express my appreciation for the privilege which is accorded us all to use that medium through which a great percentage of the public can be quickly contacted.

Last Saturday about 9 a. m. I lost a set of keys in the very heart of Cumberland's business district. It might be added that they were of value enough to cause me considerable worry for a time afterwards.

On the advice of a friend I had a Lost Ad inserted in the "Times", my first venture in such an undertaking, then skeptically awaited developments. A copy of the ad is attached for your convenience.

At 10:15 p. m. the same day I was delightfully surprised to learn by 'phone that the keys had been found and could be secured at a certain address.

Naturally I am very grateful for the finder's cooperation in the restoration of the keys, but the point I want to make is that without the Times Want Ad section the achievement would have been practically impossible under the circumstances. Here is absolute proof that people do observe the page and that "Want Ads" do pay.

Yours truly,

Art Davis's Band Drafted by Uncle Sam

The problem of what to do when Uncle Sam decides that he can do without you, but needs your entire cowboy band, was recently faced by Art Davis, singing cowboy current-co-starred with Bill Boyd and Lee Powell in P.R.C.'s "Texas Man Hunt," due tomorrow at the Embassy theater.

Signed for a previous P.R.C. film, Art set out for the film capital a few months ago with his band, consisting of himself, his brother, and four other musicians. However, before they could leave their native Tulsa, Oklahoma, three of the bandmen were ordered to report to their local draft board, for induction into the army. A week later, the fourth musician received a similar command, just after he had unpacked his suitcase in Hollywood. Two days after that, Art's brother, a reserve officer, was called up for active naval duty, leaving Art, the only survivor of the group, thanks to a temporary deferment.

Art formed a new band for the picture, and topped it off by writing a song, "I'll Come Back Someday," dedicated to his men in the armed forces.

In "Texas Man Hunt," Art sings with Bill Boyd and his Comboy Ramblers. Others in the cast are Julie Duncan, Frank Hagney and Karl Hackett. Sigmund Neufeld produced.

It was Benitez's men who trapped Heinz August Luning, Nazi spy who was recently sentenced to death in Cuba.

CO-STARS IN "GENTLEMAN JIM"

Lovely Alexis Smith is co-starred with Errol Flynn in the Strand theater's "Gentleman Jim," Warner Brothers' filmization of the life of James J. Corbett.

ing her title role in "My Sister Eileen," which also stars Rosalind Russell and Brian Aherne at the Maryland theatre, received a souvenir from the leathernecks during production of the delightful comedy. Reaching the actress at Columbia was a crate containing a baby wildcat, and a tag around its neck bearing its name—"Eileen."

"My Sister Eileen" includes in its cast such players as George Tobias, Allyn Joslyn, Miss Jeff Donnell, Richard Quine, June Havoc, Gordon Jones, Frank Sully, Donald MacBride, Grant Mitchell and Elizabeth Patterson. Alexander Hall directed the comedy, screen version of the uproarious two-year stage success.

Sports "Expert" Proves Difficult To Find

It was nearly a year ago when Warner Brothers, with a new picture, "Gentleman Jim" on its production roster, began looking for a technical advisor on fights and fighters. The picture is now showing at the Strand theater with Errol Flynn, Alexis Smith, Jack Carson and Alan Hale prominent in the cast.

How many such "experts" are there in the country?
Well, as any sports editor knows, at least half of his readers are "experts." As far as that goes, the editors themselves aren't backward at taking bows for their knowledge of sports. They, their staffs, plus a world of hangers-on in the thousands of gyms throughout the nation—all of these become potential technical advisers for the Corbett film.

Garden Presents Jane Withers Film

Jane Withers is starred in "Young America," current attraction at the Garden theater. Jane Darwell, Lynne Roberts, William Tracy and Robert Cornell are included in the cast.

Also on the Garden program is "Secret of the Wastelands," a Hopalong Cassidy Western starring William Boyd, Brad King and Andy Clyde are also featured.

AHS Tops LaSalle-Sentinels Play Franklin

Campers Stage Rally To Defeat Explorers 35-12

Losers Stun Crowd by Scoring Twice in Opening Quarter

Spotting the LaSalle High Explorers a dozen points in the first quarter, Coach Herman Ball's Allegany High Campers came surging back and with a display of sheer power overwhelmed the Blue and Gold last night at the Fort Hill stadium before 3,000 fans to open defense of the city championship with a 35-12 victory.

Pepped up for their second and final intra-city collision of the 1942 campaign, the underdog Explorers stunned the large crowd by manufacturing a pair of touchdowns in the opening period with the first one the result of a sensational eighty-eight-yard run by little Francis Passarelli.

A recovered Allegany fumble a few minutes later set up the other LaSalle six-pointer with the Explorers traveling thirty-four yards to score. Jim Jones toured left end for the final six yards.

Coach Jack Plum's boys shot their bolt in the first stanza and after that, were completely outplayed by the bigger and heavier West Siders, who although badly scared as the result of LaSalle's opening surge, came back like champions to ring up their sixth straight victory of the season and the fifteenth in a row starting with the opening contest of last year.

Snyder Paces Campus

Fullback Don Snyder again led the Campbell attack with three touchdowns and four extra points. Snyder, the city's leading scorer, banged across for the first three Allegany six-pointers. Charles "Chick" Kellough accounted for the other two touchdowns while Carl Hammerman booted the extra point following the final tally.

LaSalle kicked off to open the clash and after an exchange of punts, Allegany advanced from the Explorer thirty-four to the twelve where it was held for downs.

Deep in their own territory, LaSalle elected to try a running play and it was Passarelli who flashed out from nowhere and legged it almost the length of the gridiron with Snyder closely behind to put the Explorers ahead. Captain Ron Palmer's kick for the point was low.

On the initial Allegany play following the kickoff, Kellough fumbled and LaSalle's Charles Dordill recovered on the Camper thirty-four to pave the way for his team's other touchdown.

Jones Hits Pay Dirt

George Geatz and Jim Jones made it after the twenty-four and first picking up seven at right guard, Geatz passed to End Jim Fahy for a first on the six. Three plays later, following a line play and an incomplete pass, Jones circled left end for the touchdown. On the try for point, Palmer's boot was blocked by Van Teter.

Allegany crashed into the scoring column on the first play of the second stanza when Snyder went through left tackle for fifty-two yards and then tacked on the extra point. Some fine defensive work by the Explorers prevented any further scoring by the Campers in the second quarter, the West Siders being stopped twice by fumbles in LaSalle territory and being held for downs on the Blue and Gold five.

The Ballmen sewed up the games

Robinson Boosts Ring Win Streak

Harlem Hammer Outpoints Vic Dellicurti in Ten-Round Bout

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP)—Ray Robinson ran his all-victorious string to 127 fights in a row tonight by outpointing Middleweight Vic Dellicurti easily in ten rounds at Madison Square Garden. Robinson weighed 144, Dellicurti 133.

Welterweight Robinson had no more trouble with the rugged up-town tussler than he has buttoning his vest each morning. In fact, the "Sugar Man" so completely outclassed Dellicurti that the Associated Press score card gave him every round of the bout.

And in three of these heats after he had Vic out and bleeding badly from a deeply gashed left eye that grew progressively worse through the last six rounds, Robinson was apparently easing up and "carrying" his rival along. In these three heats—the fifth, sixth and seventh—the Harlem Hammer did nothing but dance all around the ring, sparing Vic with long, but largely harmless, left jabs. Occasionally he moved in to cuff Dellicurti about the head and body with blows that were about as solid as a dish of egg custard.

He did this again in the tenth round, even failing to throw punches when he had obvious openings, and the crowd "booed" the lack of action. So Ray laid his head on Vic's shoulder and continued cuffing Dellicurti around the body until the bell, without putting anything behind his punches.

Wisconsin and Georgia Tech Should Win but Only after Tough Battles

Claassen Picks Irish, Penn, Ohio State, Duke To Score

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP)—Picking this week's football winners with all the assurance of a housewife asking for an extra pound of coffee.

Notre Dame over Army—Army is better than the 19 to 9 loss to Penn last week indicates and this struggle should be close, with Notre Dame coming out ahead.

Georgia Tech over Kentucky—Despite its record, Kentucky is one of the toughest teams in the South. They might spring an upset but the records say Tech.

Wisconsin over Iowa—Another spot for an upset. It is the Hawkeye homecoming but the choice is Wisconsin.

California over Southern California—Apparently the Bears have pulled themselves together just in time for a game where past performances mean absolutely nothing.

Texas over Baylor—Don't believe Baylor can engineer upsets on successive weekends.

Boston college over Temple—One of the nation's best eleven meets a sub-par Temple outfit.

Penn over Navy—It will be a moral victory for the Middies if the score is no worse than the 19 to 0 pasting the Quakers gave Army last Saturday.

Missouri over Nebraska—Both teams crippled but Missouri has the better reserves.

U. C. L. A. over Oregon—Now that they feel they are headed for the Coast title and the Rose bowl that long train ride North won't trouble the Bruins a bit.

Ohio State over Pittsburgh—Oh me, oh my.

Minnesota over Indiana—That long Gopher losing streak of two games has been ended.

Georgia over Florida—Why should Frankie Sinkwich and Company start dropping decisions now?

Mississippi State over Tulane—As close as your next breath but taking a guess on State.

Yale over Cornell—The rumor is out that Yale has lost its last game of the season.

Northwestern over Illinois—Otto Graham is back in the lineup. Princeton over Dartmouth—The Tigers will be out trying to redeem themselves for that Harvard thing of last Saturday.

Lumping some of the others: Duquesne over St. Mary's, Syracuse over Penn State, Tennessee over Cincinnati, Wake Forest over Virginia Military, North Carolina over Davidson, Clemson over George Washington, The Citadel over Furman, William and Mary over Randolph-Macon, Duke over Maryland, Virginia over Washington and Lee, Virginia Tech over Richmond.

Missing West Texas Grid Jerseys Turn Up

CANYON, Tex., Nov. 6 (AP)—Five West Texas State football jerseys came home before anyone knew they were stolen.

The West Texas team was en route to Flagstaff, Ariz., when it stopped for lunch at Albuquerque, N. M. Apparently, five spare jerseys were stolen from the bus while the team was eating.

Coach Gus Miller didn't know he had been robbed until he received a package from Albuquerque's assistant chief of police, P. J. Dugan. Dugan caught five boys wearing the jerseys, removed the garments and shipped them home.

Winners Score at Least One Touchdown in Each Quarter

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., Nov. 6—Moorefield high school's football team crushed Keyser high here this afternoon 60 to 0 in a Potomac Valley Conference game, scoring at least one touchdown in each quarter.

Keyser high was no match for the Moorefield team today although the visitors did manage to make twelve first downs to Moorefield's nine, but Moorefield gained 374 yards against 280 for Keyser.

Moorefield scored three times in the first quarter, once in the second, twice in the third and twice in the fourth. Keyser was inside Moorefield's ten yard line twice, once a pass from Davey Dorsey good for 38 yards put the ball on the Moorefield four where the local line held and took the ball on downs.

Compton, Moorefield left halfback, scored the first touchdown when he ran 53 yards to score. Hott scored next on a 14 yard run followed by another touchdown jaunt of 16 yards by Bean and then Kuykendall, left tackle, intercepted a Keyser pass and ran 58 yards for the final score in the first quarter.

Compton ran 87 yards for the only score in the second quarter, and then ran 51 yards for another touchdown in the third period with Harwood going over from the four yard line for the seventh touchdown of the game. In the final quarter, Harwood scored on an 18 yard run and Hott brought the scoring to an end by galloping 23 yards for the final touchdown.

Next Friday afternoon Keyser will play LaSalle at home and will close the season at Keyser, Nov. 20 against Ridgeley.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP)—When we first heard that the Navy Pre-Flight schools were going to have football teams, and would compete against major college eleven, we felt a little sorry for the Pre-Flighters, and their coaches.

Particularly Bernie Bierman at Iowa City. A schedule had been lined up for his team which looked like it might have been doctored during one of Bob Neyland's particularly bad nightmares when he was at Tennessee. Nothing but trouble every Saturday.

Now we understand there were certain physical requirements these embryo flyers had to meet, and that one of the requirements was that they couldn't pack too much weight, as the navy didn't want young fellows to have to be shoe-horned into snug cockpits and pried out with jacks.

We thought their weight maximum was around 200 pounds, and that the average would run much lighter so that Bierman would do well to assemble a 180-pound line and a 170-pound backfield to put up against the unlimited young men of Minnesota and Northwestern and Notre Dame and the rest.

It was quite surprising, therefore, to discover through the latest roster put out by the Iowa Flyers that they could put a line on the field averaging just a shade under 220 pounds and backfield averaging 194.

Of the thirty-eight men on the new roster, thirteen weigh 200 pounds or better, with tops being a couple of 240 pounders from—surprise—Minnesota. You know that story about how Bierman picked up a barn to point with the weathervane.

Anyway, despite the remarkable testimonials for the Pre-Flight school food offered by these two fragile lads and their lesser brethren in the 200-pound class, showing that proper diet will take care of the weight problem nicely, the Pre-Flight coaches have their troubles.

Most schools have two graduation periods a year, mid-year and June. Otherwise a football player starting a season is pretty certain to remain with the team, barring slight lapses like flunking in math or whamming the dean with a ball bat or some other youthful prank.

The Pre-Flight lads abruptly are liable to find themselves educated at any time and told to depart for advanced training. Just this week the Iowa squad lost two of its backfield starters as Bill Schatzler and George Benson moved on to flight instruction.

Ridgeley Loses Conference Game To Romney Crew

Collette's Eleven Wins Third Straight Loop Battle, 33-7

A five-touchdown explosion in the first half carried Coach Chester "Chuck" Collette's Romney high graders to a 33-7 victory over a stubborn Ridgeley high outfit yesterday on the losers' field.

Romney, in registering its third straight Potomac Valley Conference victory, struck twice in the first period and three times in the second stanza but was blanked during the last half as Coach Jesse Ridgeley's Ridgeleyites staged a comeback to play the visiting eleven on more than even terms.

Ridgeley found itself in a hole right after the starting whistle. The speedy Romney halfback, Hamilton, grabbed the opening kickoff and legged it eighty yards for the visitors' first touchdown. A few minutes later, Michael crashed forty-five yards for the second Romney tally.

Ridgeley Scores on Pass In the second round, Romney put the game out of reach with Alt galloping thirty yards to score and Hamilton and Michael each scoring a second time on short line plunges.

Setters, Romney's hard-driving fullback, failed to register a touchdown but he did make two extra points, both on line bucks. Alt made the winners' other extra marker. Ridgeley gathered his seven points in the third period when Jim Phillips passed to Bill Thompson in the end zone for the final five yards. Phillips plunged the point.

Ridgeley's "huff" threatened twice in the last quarter. On one occasion, the Ridgeleyites marched to the Romney ten but fumbled and the visitors recovered. Another time, Ridgeley recovered a Romney fumble and drove to the visitors' fifteen but was stopped when a pass fell into enemy hands.

Romney rolled up ten first downs to Ridgeley's seven with the majority of the latter's coming in the last half. The winners completed one of six passes and Ridgeley connected three of seven.

Next Friday, Ridgeley will entertain the West Virginia School for the Deaf of Romney and on the following Friday, the Ridgeleyites will close their campaign by opposing Keyser in a conference scrap at Keyser. The lineups:

Pos.	ROMNEY	RIDGELEY
LT	Camphill	Brooks
LG	Parker	Carder
C	Henderson	Groves
RG	Wagoner	Amata
RT	Powell	Logsdon
QB	Wagoner	Wilson
HB	Alt	Thompson
FB	Hamilton	Bean
Substitutes:	Romney—B. Bean, High, C. F. Bean, Harper, Combs, Grove, Leathman, Shiflet, Keyser, W. Hartman, L. Harwood, Barrett, Wheeler, W. Hartman.

Points after touchdowns—Romney 2, Alt, Thompson. Ridgeley 2, Michael 2, Alt, Thompson.

Points after touchdowns—Setters 2, Alt, Thompson.

Officials—Hahn, Blough and Henry.

West Virginia Tech Loses to Morehead

MOREHEAD, Ky., Nov. 6 (AP)—Coach Ellis Johnson's Morehead College Eagles defeated a fighting but outclassed West Virginia Tech eleven today, 13-6.

The West Virginia touchdown came early in the opening quarter, and the Morehead tallies were made in the third and fourth periods.

A seventy-five yard punt by James Bakalis, Tech back, which rolled out of bounds on the Morehead four-yard line, set up the touchdown for the visitors. Ken Micholowski got off a bad return kick to his own twenty-four, where West Virginia took over the ball. A pass from Jess Lacy on the Morehead eight, to Kenneth Legg, in the end zone, provided the lone West Virginia score.

A sustained drive from the Morehead forty-five in the third quarter put the Eagles in a scoring position on the four yard line. Micholowski drove off tackle to pay dirt for the first Morehead touchdown.

Tech twice held Morehead within the ten-yard line in the fourth period, but the Eagles weren't to be denied, and Bard Harper scored from the twenty on the Ellismen's third thrust.

seventy names. The new roster lists only thirty-eight, and fourteen of the thirty-eight were not on the original roster. This gives an idea of how Bierman must shuffle around his players, bringing in newly arrived candidates as he watches the "veterans" depart. It's sort of an endless proposition, with Bierman doing what polishing he can as the boys move slowly toward the dump bin at the end. Then he starts all over again on the new boys at the other end of the line.

The one thing that has enabled the Pre-Flight coaches to turn out tough teams is the fact practically all of the boys have played college football, some of them a good deal of college football. If Bierman, for instance, had only run-of-the-mill material such as most colleges attract to work with, he could not hope to turn out a stout team in the limited time he has to work with the lads.

But we've quit worrying about the Pre-Flight boys. On the whole they've taken care of themselves pretty well on the football field, despite the weight handicap. Imagine! Only fourteen 200-pounders on a squad of thirty-eight.

Poet Lardner Goes Swimming but Not To Pick This Week's Pigskin Winners

By JOHN LARDNER

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—There was considerable bad feeling around the Poets' Snooker and Bridge Club after the Poet Byron swam the Hellespont. The Poet Byron, or George, as we called him when we were speaking to him, suddenly took the attitude that your poetry was no good unless you had swum across a sizeable piece of water.

The trouble was, the publishers felt the same way.

This forced the rest of us who wanted to make an honest dollar to climb into our bathing suits and do what we could. The Poet Schofield chose the Amazon river. Crocodiles got him half way across, but his sales doubled. I swam the Mississippi, and promptly got offers from six new publishers.

Foiled by Dog-Paddle Biting his nails with envy, Byron led an expedition West and discovered from eyewitnesses that I had crossed the river at its source, where it is ten feet three inches wide. He screamed for his lawyers.

Things looked bad till I learned from a Turkish spy that Byron himself had swum the Hellespont with a dog-paddle stroke. Confronted with exposure, the handsome fellow withdrew his suit and took up gin rummy. I never had any trouble with him after that.

Which leads us, naturally, to this week's surefire football winners: If someone takes you by the hand, And says that Minnesota Won't beat Indiana's band—Tell him where to go to.

Syracuse-Penn State? A tie. I said it, and I'm stuck with it. (A grandstand play, I know, but my bows I'd take if I should hit!)

The Crimson Tide of Alabama? Once checked, will start to roll again. South Carolina has no dam. That's big enough to stop it, men. The strength and speed of Notre Dame.

Her skill, and all the rest point Straight to the loss of a football game By the gallant sons of West Point.

Temple lies on the right of way From Boston to the Sugar bowl. Here comes the locomotive. May The Lord have mercy on her soul.

Liners Hope To Avenge 1941 Loss to Duke

DURHAM, N. C., Nov. 6 (AP)—Duke and Maryland football teams held their final pre-game drills here today as Coaches Eddie Cameron of Duke and Clark Shaughnessy of Maryland prepared to send their squads into a Southern Conference game tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Shaughnessy, master mind of the Maryland "T" formation, sent his team through an hour drill in Duke stadium.

The Marylanders will be out to avenge the 50-0 decision that Wallace Wade's 1941 team scored over them, while the Blue Devils are eager to get back into the win column after last week's 26-7 defeat at the hands of Georgia Tech.

Coach Bill Hahn's Fort Hill High Sentinels will be top-heavy favorites to roll to their seventh consecutive victory of the season tonight when they oppose Franklin (W. Va.) high graders at 8 o'clock at the Fort Hill stadium here.

The West Virginians, tutored by Dona Probst, have won only one of five games this season, turning back the West Virginia School for the Deaf of Romney 20-0 in their last start after bowing 34-0 to Harrisonburg (Va.) high, 26-0 to Moorefield's Yellow Jackets, 7-0 to Romney high and 12-0 to Parsons High's Panthers.

Sentinels Average 38 Points Fort Hill, boasting perfect records both on the offense and defense, hopes to again keep its goal line uncrossed. In six games so far, the Hilltoppers have piled up a total of 201 points while holding opposing teams to a goose egg total.

The Sentinels, averaging thirty-three points a game, have turned back Thomas 48-0, Ridgeley 47-0, Berkeley Springs 54-0, Martinsburg 27-0, LaSalle 13-0 and Handley of Winchester, Va., 12-0.

New Backfield Setups Coach Hahn reported last night that a new backfield combination will probably be tried out for the first time. The Sentinel mentor said that Goldie Evans reached the age of 21 last week and won't be eligible while Robert "Skinny" Martin, Warren "Chester" Squires and Able Calhoun, all backs, and Merle Orrford, center, are nursing slight injuries but will probably be in condition to play.

Bill Menges will probably be at quarterback in place of Calhoun while pairing with Kenny Bridges at the halfback positions will be Martin, who will probably substitute for Evans the rest of the season. Joe Monteleone, who had been on the injured list, will be at fullback.

PROFITS FROM ERRORS
WHEN YOU are lucky, even your errors may pay you profits. On some deals, the very soundest bidding and play would get you nowhere in particular, but some bizarre mistake can produce rich dividends. Even such things as slips of the tongue—naming one suit when you mean to be bidding another—will occasionally pan out in your own favor. When Lady Luck is really on the job, she is unbatable.

When North quickly sorted his hand, his spade A must have been more or less stuck to some other card, because he didn't see it. All he noticed, in honor strength, was the diamond A, club K, heart Q, spade J and heart 10—exactly an average hand and not enough to bid. So he passed.

South had his hand sorted all right, and opened the bidding. He swore by all the fates that he had bid 1-Spade, but everybody else heard him say 1-Heart. Just see what his misnomer did to the rest of the bidding. It, of course, kept West from bidding the suit. It also caused North to think his side had a pretty good situation for No Trumps, especially since he had rearranged his cards and suddenly discovered the spade A. Realizing he had passed a good opening bid, he took no chances, but jumped all the way into game at No Trumps.

East, as was to be expected, led the J of his partner's diamonds, whereupon North ran ten consecutive tricks. Thus a pair, in which each member made a bad mistake during the bidding period, got a game from a deal which did not contain a game.

Second Daylight 'Alert' Observed In Cumberland

Ridgeley Co-operates in Surprise Test of Fifteen Minutes

A surprise daylight air raid alert was observed here yesterday and for the second time this year Cumberland citizens followed instructions outlined by civilian defense officials by taking to shelter for fifteen minutes after which normal business was resumed.

Herman L. Myers, assistant to the chief air raid warden of Allegany county, sounded the signal at city hall that brought vehicular and pedestrian traffic to a standstill at 2:30 p. m., and fifteen minutes later the "all clear" was sounded.

Buses Discharge Passengers
John F. Rodman, operating manager of the Potomac Edison Company, said that bus drivers followed instructions by discharging passengers at the sound of the signal to enable them to take shelter. He estimated that fifteen buses were in operation when the alert signal brought them to a stop. Bus schedules were delayed about thirty minutes as a result of the test.

A number of private cars were halted by state guards and air raid wardens when their operators failed to hear the signal but most pedestrians in the downtown business section obeyed at the sound of the siren and sought shelter in stores.

Myers was at Allegany hospital visiting Vincent P. Ingram, director of civilian defense, who has been a patient there, when he was advised to come to the control center immediately. When he arrived he was told that the Third Service Command had ordered an alert.

Ridgeley Observes Alert
Ridgeley, as usual, co-operated with Cumberland and the fire sirens were sounded there to warn those driving vehicles and pedestrians to take to the shelters. Air raid wardens and auxiliary police lost no time bringing traffic to a standstill for fifteen minutes.

Motorists in some sections of the city failed to hear the signal and kept driving but they were soon waved down by state guardsmen, air raid wardens and auxiliary police.

Civilian defense officials admitted that the signals are not clear enough in some sections of the city but added that this failing will soon be remedied with the installation of additional sirens.

The first daylight air raid alert was held here September 18. The sirens started wailing at 6:30 p. m., and at 6:45 p. m., the all-clear was sounded.

Gustave F. Schultz Dies

Gustave F. Schultz, 65, former resident, died at his home in West-town township, Pa., last Saturday following a heart attack, according to word received here today.

Mr. Schultz was a native of Trenton, N. J., but had been in the plumbing contracting business in Cumberland, for thirty years previous to his retirement two years ago, when he left to make his home in West Chester, Pa.

Mrs. Schultz and son-in-law, Lloyd Mitchell, were at his bedside at death. A daughter, Virginia, is in the Homeopathic Hospital with a little son, Lawrence Gustave, nine days old. Another grandson, Paul, aged 4, is at home.

There are also four sisters surviving, all living in Trenton, N. J.

Mrs. Maria Cosgrove Dies

Word has been received here by Mrs. Edmund Lewis, of LaVale, of the death Thursday afternoon of her aunt, Mrs. Maria Lewis Cosgrove, in Columbia hospital, Wilkesburg, Pa.

Mrs. Cosgrove was a daughter of Mrs. Diana Anthony Lewis, former resident of Frostburg, and the late David Lewis. Besides her mother and her niece, she is survived by her husband, DeSales Cosgrove, Wilkesburg, Delaware, one daughter, Mrs. Catherine Cosgrove LaGorra, Wilkesburg, Pa., and a sister, Mrs. Olivia Castleman, Wilkesburg, Pa.

Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon in Wilkesburg.

Rites for Mrs. Slaughter

Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon for Mrs. Catherine Slaughter, 79, who died Tuesday at her home, 325 Independence street.

Services were held in St. Luke's Lutheran church with the Rev. H. Hall Sharp, pastor, officiating. Burial was made in the church cemetery.

Miss Janet M. Little Dies

Miss Janet M. Little died yesterday morning at a Columbia, Ohio, nursing home where she had been a patient since April.

A native of Cumberland, she was a daughter of Mrs. Eugenia S. Little and the late Robert W. Little. She was a graduate of the Allegany County Academy and of the Ithaca Conservatory of Music.

Myers Small Succumbs
Myers Small, who resided in Cumberland until a few months ago, died Thursday morning in Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, of pneumonia. He was a well-known tobacco salesman in this section. Burial will be made in his home town, Augusta, Ga.

David M. Steele, newly elected sheriff of Allegany county said yesterday that one of the nicest things that came to him as the result of his election, was a letter from his former high school principal at Lonaconing, Arthur F. Smith.

Sheriff Steele graduated from Central high school eighteen years ago, and said he was pleasantly surprised to realize that his old school principal remembered him. Smith's letter extended his congratulations to Steele and recalled the fact that Steele was one of the students in the school in 1924.

Yesterday's air raid alert, which was state-wide in scope, came as a surprise to practically everyone. Many people here had just started to work for the 3 o'clock shifts at local plants, but the all-clear sounded so that they had time to get to work without much, if any delay.

There was a definite scarcity of air raid wardens on the job, and the few who did turn out, together with a handful of state guardsmen and local police, had their hands full for awhile getting traffic to stop and pedestrians in shelters. Most motorists when whistled at and signaled down said they did not hear the sirens, and were surprised when they were asked to "pull over and park."

One local resident reported that he was caught in the alert at Frederick and the situation there was much the same, except that one could hear the alarm. Many people (Continued on Page 14, Col. 3)
